Since today is the Feast of the Most Sacred Heart of Jesus I want to mention the importance of the Apostleship of prayer and the recitation of the Morning Offering.
 Although most of us know from memory the little prayer, a printed copy of it will be certain to observe it, is a helpful way of remembering and of encouraging other members of our families to make the offering.
 A HOLY card bearing an image of the Sacred Heart of Jesus with the offering can be neatly taped to a kitchen wall or cupboard where it will not only serve as a reminder to us but also as a reminder to Our Blessed Lord who in his well known promise to St. Margaret Mary declared, "I will bless every place in which an image of My Heart shall be exposed and honored."
 Surely we realize the need God's blessing especially in our kitchens which are our workshops, laboratories, occasional courts of justice and often scenes of family merriment. How different family life would be for many if every kitchen were a place of blessedness where to paraphrase another of the promises—Christ had established His peace.

If WE think about the peace of Christ we know that it comes only to those who follow His way of charity, faithfulness to duty, selflessness, gentleness, forgiveness and joy. If we strive to bring these necessary virtues into our daily work every day in our kitchen, we shall help establish peace in our homes.
 Once firmly established in our own home perhaps it will overflow into the neighborhood and finally into the world at large where the charity and peace of Christ are so badly needed today.

Mary's Hands
 Baby hands, pink and rosy, pat Ann's wrinkled cheek and tangle Joachim's hair.
 Small hands from Temple steps wave in childish bliss, touch sweet lips to hide a sob, or to throw a kiss.
 Little girl hands learn to weave a pattern on the loom, to cook and bake, to spin and tidy up a room.
 Lovely hands, soft and white, a Maiden's new, clasped in Joseph's work worn ones, to seal a marriage vow.
 Mother hands hold God's own Son, and smooth His hair of gold, and wrap Him snug in swaddling clothes to keep Him from the cold.
 Housewife hand in Nazareth's home toll day after day, loose the bandals of tired feet and guide a Child's play.
 Praying hands, uplifted a sword pierced heart to still, to push away the vision of the distant hill.
 Loving hands lift Joseph to ease his labored breath, then wipe away a silent tear, and close his eyes in death.
 Aging hands, worn, and etched deep by time (lightly hold a staff for aid, the hill to climb).
 Anguished hands reach up, receive Him tenderly, and wash away with tears the soil of Calvary.
 Bereft hands hold Him just once more, in the Garden's murky gloom, caress the broken body, and lay it in the tomb.
 Virgin hands, undelled, immortal, Angel held and guided straight to Heaven's portal.
 Gracious hands hold the key to Heaven's door.
 Pleading hands beseech us, our ransom to procure.
 Queenly hands, Heaven's own, outstretched in generosity, Mary's hands, gift laden, the gift, Her Rosary.
