Trips Off Reservations Asked For Indian Boys

Rev. Bernard A. Cullen, director general of the Marquette League for Catholic Indian Missions, has likened Indian reservations to ghettos and concentration camps. Isolated from non-Indian communities, the American Indian has become the forgotten race in the United States.

With no lobby in Washington, the Indian has no one to fight for favorable legislation for his people. He is excluded from benefits given by the large national organizations.

Despite that fact the TB and infant mortality rates for Indians are higher (in some tribes fifteen times higher) than any other group in the United States, they have less medical and hospital care. Almost without exception, Indian reservations are located on arid land and will not yield them over a minimum standard of living.

In ORDER to remind Americans of these unfortunate people, the Marquette League sponsors awards for Indians attending reservation mission schools. These awards are vacation trips to New York City and high school scholarships for New York schools.

The results are two-fold. The white man is reminded of their neglected countrymen living in their ghetto-like reservations and the Indian children (selected for their high scholarship and moral records) learn something of the white man's world which will aid them when they reach maturity in fighting for better conditions for their people.

These good-will ambassadorships, however, cost the Marquette League (289 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, N. Y.) a pretty sum. The League asks support in its work.
