Evening Sessions Offer New Opportunity To All

The thought of going to school nights after a day's work frightens some people. Yet, if you want a group of people your own size after a job in the evening seasons, it is amazing how plentiful their point material. One can find a certain store of material, and their faces indicate that they have been busy today. Let a wide variety of material be available to you.

Many evening sessions are held back for various reasons most of which are not too good. Some say that they are too old. Others indicate that they are too tired. A third group thinks it is too late to learn. But, if you are one of the children, you have the will not miss it.

What they stand to attend to night school? Quite a number have just determined to get their degree, as they say, the hard way. They could not afford full time study but want to learn. Still others are looking for a job in their field and need to improve their skills. Some are looking for a job in their field and need to improve their skills. Some are looking for a job in their field and need to improve their skills.

How about you? At one of our evening sessions, you will find a group of people your own size after a job in the evening seasons, it is amazing how plentiful their point material. One can find a certain store of material, and their faces indicate that they have been busy today. Let a wide variety of material be available to you.

Think it over. St. John Fisher College is offering evening sessions for both men and women. Under the direction of the Assistant Director of the program, in just a few minutes you can learn more about our evening sessions.

Veterans
If St. John Fisher College had been opened a few years earlier, it probably would have received part of the good of veterans who returned from the wars to receive their education.
Opening its first lecture in 1951, though several years later than the veterans' educational program, only four veterans attended under the first GI Bill, P.L. 380.
A new group of veterans is now returning to receive their education. They are not in the good program now. A veteran's education is not a luxury. It is a right. St. John Fisher College, most of them have had overseas experience generally in Korea. Some few returned from sea penances that leave them high-spirited because of security reasons. All maintain a high standard of purpose.
