New Schools For God And Nation. Says Bp. Kearney

See editorial, "Tale Of Three Cities, on page 4.

An enthusiastic crowd of over 3,000 Rochesterians rallied about Bishop James E. Kearney Tuesday evening, the Bishop's 68th birthday, to launch the most vaunted undertaking in the history of the Rochester Diocese-a $8,045,000 fund drive to build four new Catholic high schools.

The Culver Road Armory assemblage, which marked the largest gathering for a fund raising campaign in Rochester history, heard Bishop Kearney hall the high school building program as "an undertaking which gives honor to God and

THE NEW SCHOOLS WHICH the current fund, drive will help build include: McQuaid High School for boys and St. Agnes High School for girls, both in Rochester; Mount Carmel High School for boys and girls in Auburn; and Notre Dame de Lourdes High School for boys and girls in Elmira.

The Bishop expressed pleasure with the community's acceptance and support of the high school appeal. Flanking him at the speaker's table were a score of Rochester's leading industrialist and business leaders whose firms have already pledged generous contributions to the fund campaign.

Striking out at the charge which calls Catholic schools a divisive factor in American life, the Bishop warned that those who want to enroll all our American children in one state-controlled school system, are advocating a totalitarian doctrine.

"This is not the American way," he said. "The right to educate our children according to the dictates (Continued on Page 6)

Auburn Opens Fund Bid For Mt. Carmel High School

Auburn-An army of 700 workers are in the door-bellringing stage of the biggest fund raising venture ever tackled by Auburn Catholics. They are seeking $512,000 for the new Mount Carmel High School. The project here is part of Bishop Kearney's High School Jubilee Fund which has an overall goal of $3,045,000 and will provide for two more high schools in Rochester and one in Elmira as well as the one here.

The local phase of the diocesam campaign was opened Monday evening at a kickeff dinner in the Hotel Osborne. The turnout of 700 workers evertaxed the hotel's facilities and marked one of the largest gather-

His Excellency Bishop James E. Kearney, whose 15th anniversary as Bishop of the Rochester Diocese is being commemorated through the diocesanwide drive, was present as guest of honor.

The Bishop congratulated the throng of campaigners for their efforts "in the great spiritual work" of building a new central Catholic high school for the boys and girls of Auburn. "We can plan and hope for such a project but you are the builders," he told the workers. "Although the school is associated with my name, without the hard work and untiring efforts of you good people, the effort would be futile."

THE BISHOP predicted that the drive would be successful "because one of the outstanding features of this drive is that everyone is interested that it be a success."

Keynote speakers who addressed the workers were the Rev. Kieran J. Hickey, professor at the Carmelite Monastery here; and City Recorder John J. Naskiewicz. Father Hickey, a member of the Carmelite Fathers who will build the new high school, explained the need of Catholic education in present day America. HE LAID the "brutal realities of our times" at the doors of secularist educators and charged that "their bright promises of yesterday have not been fulfilled."
