

Catholic Men Give Woman PR Post

Washington—(NC)—Men have always recognized the persuasive power of a woman. The National Council of Catholic Men has capitalized on this talent by hiring a woman as director of public relations.

Miss Alice Zuccher's appointment to this position was announced here by Martin Work, executive secretary of NCCM.

In her new job Miss Zuccher will direct her attention to the task of making the expanded Radio and TV program of the National Council of Catholic Men better known.

of our consciences is a treasured privilege in our country and part of our American heritage.

The Bishop predicted success for the campaign drive which will conclude on November 11 and also mark the 15th anniversary of his installation as Bishop of Rochester. Citing the motto, "In God we trust," he added, "He who puts his trust in God can be sure of final victory."

THE REV. Robert T. Gannon, S.J., president of Fordham University and now pastor of St. Ignace Church in New York, headlined the speakers list.

He traced modern social ills to 19th century philosophers "who destroyed the doctrine of the absolute truth."

"Men like Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes and educator John Dewey throw out the idea that some things were absolutely right and some things absolutely wrong," the Jesuit declared.

ROASTMASTER FOR the affair was Robert E. Glina, general chairman of the Bishop's High School Jubilee Fund, who

As a result, he explained, "men today in politics, law and industry are seeking to do, not what is right, but what is smart," he said.

Father Gannon explained the history of the Jesuit Fathers who will establish the McQuaid High School and pledged that the Jesuits would give Rochester a good school.

Reports

Report dinner meetings for the Rochester campaign are slated in the Culver Road Armory as follows: Saturday, November 1; Friday, November 7; and the closing dinner on Tuesday, November 11.

IN ANOTHER address, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Charles J. Mahoney, diocesan superintendent of schools, outlined Bishop Kearney's accomplishments since coming to the diocese in 1937. He cited the Bishop's noteworthy efforts for education, charity, civic enterprise and the general leadership of his people.

Monsignor Mahoney also presented the Bishop a framed tribute of prayers offered in his behalf by the children of the diocesan schools.

called the turnout of campaign workers "a tremendous expression of the magnitude of Catholic unity and purpose."

Recalling that the United States was founded by religious men, Glina said that "today there is a greater need for Christian education to oppose the foe of Communism."

He also pointed to the upsurge in high school enrollments, forecast for 1954, to underscore the critical need for more Catholic high schools.

Glina paid special tribute to members of the Rochester Special Gifts Committee headed by Frederick M. Tobin and Joseph L. Hockene.

The Very Rev. Magr. John S. Handall, campaign manager, gave the workers final instructions on the procedure for seeking the pledges.

FOR PARENTS

'Your Teen-Agers: How To Survive Them'

Milwaukee, Wis.—(NC)—A book designed to help parents of teen-agers "straighten out some of their own quirks and set an example" has been published here.

THE AUTHOR is Mrs. Alvena Burnite, a Milwaukee mother and intake officer of Milwaukee Children's Court. The book is called "Your Teen-Agers: How to Survive Them" and just has been published by the Bruce Publishing Company.

The family is emphasized in the book as the cornerstone of democracy and suggestions are given parents to help them achieve strong family solidarity, the basis of a good society.

The book's formula for success with teen-agers is based on three aspects of adolescent development — spiritual, physical and emotional. Necessity for religious training is emphasized.

"IF YOU HAVE introduced God to your family," Mrs. Burnite writes, "you have begun the most important part of your parental responsibility. The spiritual emphasis in the teen-ager's lives gives you the strength, the wisdom and security to work out the rest which is to come."

Fake Papal Letter Cited By Communists

London—(RNS)—Bulgaria Today, organ of the Bulgarian Legation here, published an article in which a nonexistent Papal encyclical was quoted to support Communist charges against Bishop Eugene Bosalkoil, C.F., recently sentenced to death by a Sofia court.

Fr. Harold Purcell Dies, Founded City For Negroes

Montgomery, Ala.—(NC)—Father Harold Purcell, founder of the five-million-dollar City of St. Jude here who died (Oct. 22) at the age of 72, had completed nearly 20 years in an apostolate to the Negro following a career as a priest-editor which had taken him to the very forefront of Catholic Journalism.

FROM ROYHOOD, Father Purcell was deeply interested in the social and spiritual welfare of the Negro. He had shown this interest by assisting the Negro apostolate in Texas and North Carolina.

When he came here to found a community dedicated to St. Jude, "the Saint of the Impossible," he realized a long-cherished ambition to arouse white American Catholics to the social and moral welfare needs of the Negroes.

With the exception of a Federal grant-in-aid for building the $1,500,000 hospital completed last year, all of the projects in the City of St. Jude were paid for through private funds raised by the priest.

Father Purcell began his work here by opening a clinic in a slum area of the city then inaugurated the City of St. Jude by constructing a combination church-school and social center on the outskirts of Montgomery. A modern school was added in 1934.
