Fatima Float In College Parade

Stillwater, Okla. — (NC) — A float depicting Our Lady's appearance at Fatima was one of 52 in the homecoming day parade at Oklahoma A. & M. College here.

Sponsored by the college's Newman Club, the float was built by club members, Air Force men stationed at the college, and several Protestants. The words, "Pray for Peace" were printed on one side of the float.

Geneva KC Set Musical Revue

Geneva—Knights of Columbus plan to "do it again" this year with a new musical production, "Bells A Hoppin," a three-night revue Dec. 1-2-3 in De Sales High School Auditorium.

Spurred on by the popularity of previous musical productions, the Knights are rapidly completing plans for this year's presentation, which, the committee says, will be "bigger and better." The revue will be for the benefit of the K of C charity fund.

HARRY A. Humphrey is general chairman of the revue. He says the production will have a cast of more than 140 Genevans.

In addition to sending a director with professional stage training, the Rogers Co. will provide elaborate costumes and scenery, all especially designed for this one production, he said.

"It will be just like a professional Broadway show," the chairman declared.

"Rather than ask the public for donations to help us carry on our work with the Knights of Columbus charitable activities," Mr. Humphrey explained, "our organization decided that we will again provide some worthwhile entertainment for the public, one in which they will really get their money's worth."

"BELLS A HOPPIN" will be divided into two parts. The first half will be similar to professional musical revues, and will consist of a series of comedy situations. Costumed dance choruses will perform dance routines, with vocal numbers and specialties.

Second half of the show will be devoted to the old time minstrel show, with many favorites in their accustomed roles of endmen.

Irish Father, Negro Mother Gave Bishop To Church

New York — (NC) — The story of an Irish-born father and a Negro slave mother who gave five children to the Church — a Bishop, two priests and two nuns — was recounted by the Rev. Albert S. Foley, S.J., of the Institute of Social Order at St. Louis University, before the Catholic Interracial Forum here.

THE BISHOP in the family was the Most Rev. James Augustine Healy, who was born in Georgia in 1830 and who served as the second Bishop of Portland, Me., from 1875 to 1900. Father Foley has completed a biography of the Bishop which will be published in the near future.

Father Foley said that the Bishop's mixed ancestry never seemed to have been a handicap to him. He described the Bishop as an eloquent speaker with a magnetic personality and exceptional administrative ability. He said that oldtimers in the Portland diocese recall the sight of the Bishop walking along a street with children hanging to his hands and coattails.

FATHER FOLEY said their parents saw to it that the Healy children were educated in Catholic secondary schools in the United States and Canada. He said Bishop Healy attended the then newly established Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass., and was graduated with first honors in the first graduating class in 1849.

The future Bishop made his studies for the priesthood in Montreal and Paris, where he was ordained in 1854. He became known for his charitable work, was an authority on Canon Law and served as the first Chancellor of the Boston diocese before he was elevated to the Episcopate, Father Foley said.

IN PORTLAND, Father Foley said, it was recalled that Bishop Healy use to ride around his parish on horseback, saddlebags loaded with groceries for the poor.

One of the Bishop's brothers, the Rev. Patrick Healy, S.J., served as president of Georgetown University in Washington, D. C., Father Foley recalled.

By FAWN SCHEFFEL

Robert Taylor, the one-time glamor boy has matured into a fine actor. This fact has been proven in his handling of the role in "Quo Vadis" and again in "Ivanhoe", currently showing at the Loew's Rochester Theater.

Taylor does a consistently good job in the title role of the epic color-version of the Scott classic.

Blonde and brunette beauty vie for top position with Joan Fontaine as Rowena and Elizabeth Taylor as Rebecca. These Hollywood beauties are at their best against the magnificent technicolor settings and wearing the gorgeous costumery of the period.

• • •

GEORGE SANDER'S portrayal of de Bois-Guilbert and Emlyn Williams' interpretation of the jester, Wamba, are dramatic delights.

As the father of Ivanhoe, Finlay Currie, last seen as St. Peter in "Quo Vadis," plays with strength and humor. Felix Aylmer, who did Polonius to Olivier's "Hamlet", is splendid in the role of the philosophic Jew, Issac, father of Rebecca.

The production of "Ivanhoe" was well worth the two years' preparation and the year-long filming process. For scenery, authentic sets and the exciting color of battle, no more could be asked.

The Christopher Award winning "Ivanhoe" is a must.
