AMONG WOMEN
Shoulder Pad Blankets

By Mary Lennon Snyder

Rare indeed is the woman who can boast that she has not stored away someplace a collection of unused or use- less articles. Oliver Gold- Smith in "The Deserted Village" remark- ed on this fem- inine tendency when in his de- scription of the village in- par- lor, he wrote:

Mrs. Snyder

"While broken tea-cups, wisely kept for show, Ranged o'er the chimney, glisten- ed in a row."

Basically, I suspect that this saving or hoarding tendency has its roots in a misguided thrifti- ness.

I SUPPOSE, if over the years one saves small leftovers of yarn, eventually there will be enough for a pair of "hit and miss" mittens; but some collec- tions are a little harder to justify.

Such I thought was my ac- cumulation of shoulder pads from dresses. The collection pro- ceedure goes something like this: ten or fifteen years has been solid with shoulder pads of vary- ing size and degree of thick- ness.

IN MY CASE, the dress after just so much wear becomes one I wear around home, and the shoulder pads which formerly were put back in the dress after each washing or cleaning begin to be left out.

Eventually the dress goes into oblivion often via a rummage sale, but the pads which have been spared numerous washings and cleanings remain in my pos- session.

I NEVER KNEW of any good use to put them to, but I have around my house, as do doubt many other women have, many pairs of these dress accessories.

But now I can thank the Na- tional Council of Catholic Women for providing me with a sug- gestion for the useful disposal of the shoulder pads. In the War Relief Highlights of the N.C.C.W. Monthly Message I read:

"We stuffed old shoulder pads into corners of an overseas box," reports the chairman of a Rich- mond D.C.C.W. affiliate, "and were surprised to receive a let- ter from a mother saying she sewed them together to make her baby's blanket!"

IN HER LETTER the overseas mother went on to say that the shoulder pad blanket was "nicer than a newspaper stuffed with leaves."

I don't know how beautiful my shoulder pad blanket will be but I do know that I am going to sew my useless collection to- gether and cover the improvised quilt with some outing flannel. It will be a nice project for some of these housebound winter days.

And it will be a consoling thought that my blind and pur- poseless hoarding will result in some body being shielded from the cold winds of a cold world.
