

Bishop O'Gara Released By Chinese Reds

Hong Kong—(NC)—Bishop Cuthbert O'Gara of Yuanling, Canadian-born Passionist who had been thrown in jail by the Chinese communists in the early summer of 1951, has reached this British colony and was immediately taken in an ambulance to St. Francis hospital here.

He was expelled with two U. S. Passionist missionaries who were also deported under guard. At St. Francis Hospital, the 67-year-old Bishop was reported in "fair" condition.

BISHOP O'GARA had been told by the communist authorities that he and his Vicar General, Father Paul Ubinger, C.P., of Pittsburgh, were to be expelled last March 22. They were moved from their place of confinement on that date, and when they failed to reach Hong Kong in a reasonable time there was apprehension that they had merely been moved to another Red prison.

Bishop Denies Rites To Former Communist

Ferignoux, France—(NC)—A pro-communist member of the French National Assembly who died here several days ago has been denied a church funeral by Bishop Georges Louis of Ferignoux.

He was Charles Serre, a former Christian Democrat who left his party to join a small communist-front group.

To protests in the Red press Bishop Louis has replied that his decision was based on the Holy See's decree barring from the Sacraments all "who knowingly and willingly join the Communist Party or aid it in any way."

The Bishop added that he had given the pastor of Serre's parish permission to recite the prayers for the dead at his grave.

REFLECTIONS OF A SINNER

Manchester, N. H.—These are the first four Stations of the Cross as executed by Gerard Doyon, instructor at St. Anselm's Catholic College and the Institute of Arts and Sciences, both in this city. Mr. Doyon has departed from the traditional, not only in the use of formalized-ethiopic type figures but also in the legend accompanying each station. Instead of the regular iconography, they consist of the reflections of a sinner face to face with actually every step along the road to Calvary. Each station is done on the rough side of mosaic panels, the base being painted with silver and the picture with oils. A recent Fulbright scholar in France, Mr. Doyon previously executed 20 canvases on the Passion of Our Lord. The paintings were acclaimed in Europe. (Religious News Service Photo).

Christopher Award Given To Popular Song Writers

New York—(RNS)—For the first time a popular song won for its writers Christopher awards. Dr. James Keller, M.M., founder and director of The Christophers, presented bronze medallions to song-writers Erwin Drake, Jimmy Shirl, Irvin Graham and Al Stillman, for the nationally popular "I Believe."

They were among 28 writers, producers, and directors who received the group's quarterly awards for works that "reflect the power for good that can be exerted, with God's help, by one individual in the literary and entertainment fields."

Awards in the motion picture field went to Walt Disney for "Peter Pan" (RKO); and to producer Sol Bar Fielding, director, Gerald Mayer and writer Emmet Lavery for "Bright Road" (MG M). The latter film was based on the 1951 Christopher award winning story by Mary Elizabeth Wroanman which appeared originally in the Ladies Home Journal.

Loveland, O.—(NC)—Four young women from the Grallville Lay Mission School here are enroute to Africa to serve the Church as lay missionaries.

They are: Mary Imelda Buckley of Brooklyn, N. Y., a member of the Grallville staff, who will join the faculty of St. Ann's XII University in Bamako; Marie Therese McDermott of Nanty Glo, Pa., graduate nurse and nursing instructor, who will join a Grall medical team in Uganda; Rita Josten of Waukesha, Wis., who will be stationed at the Grall center in Rivonia, Union of South Africa; and Mary Emma Kuhn of Bradock, Pa., who has been granted a scholarship to continue her studies at St. Ann's XII University.

Pope Praises Czechs On Patron's Feast

New York—(NC)—A message from Pope Pius XII highlighted the recent 900th anniversary ceremony of the death of St. Procopius, patron saint of Czechoslovakia.

His Holiness, in congratulating the American-Czechs—for their zeal, said he "earnestly prays the glorious Procopius to continue to watch over your monastery with his powerful patronage and inflame the souls of all with that ardor with which he himself most vehemently burned in the pursuit of holiness."

Signs And Wonders

SIGNS AND WONDERS: A Novel, by Leo Brady. Dutton, 1955. THE REASON FOR ANN, AND Other Stories, by Myles Connolly. McMillan, 1952. Leo Brady has grown since The Edge of Doom: for all its adaptability to Samuel Goldwyn feature standards, it was too simply a Crime and Punishment concentration in modern dress. In Signs and Wonders he still has story, and he creates varied, growing characters. His hero is so enraptured, so deeply buried in a lifetime of self-worship that you think it the inner corrosion of the elder Barrett of Wimpole Street, and you feel like protesting, "Oh no, not this character, not such a good, devout Catholic, used to examining his conscience—he wouldn't expect God to appear to him on request, or unexpectedly either."

You are sure such a one would be sound at the core, would not go to such ludicrous extremes, must be overdrawn or else is consummate villain. Irremediable. But Leo Brady is more penetrating: his hero is sound deep within, yet goes to far more ludicrous extremes than these, even perpetrates casually and against the urging of grace a major cruelty, risking his own salvation and his daughter's happiness.

AND WHAT in the first pages seemed the author's Compton-Mackenzie picking of flaws in any and every character emerges as tender realism, an intimacy of perception; the knife cuts, revealing now wholesomeness, now malignancy.

No member of the family is built up to knock down: the boy home from the Sea, the older son arranging a divorce, the girl on guard against hypocrisy, the mother endlessly devising ways to love, all are foil to and growth of the parent stock.

That mother, the darling! She may concealed from many of her acquaintances behind a business talk; few people are prepared for total utterance and Elizabeth left nothing out.

Minister Resigns In Protest Against Strapless Gowns

Oxford, N. C.—(RNS)—The Rev. Homer Nichols resigned as pastor of the West Oxford Baptist church when the congregation refused to support his edict against strapless gowns at church weddings.

He was replaced by the Rev. E. G. Ury who announced that he has "no objection to what people wear in church so long as they are decently dressed" and that he believes "the law won't allow them to go out any other way."

The dispute arose when Ruth Hedgepath, a public school teacher, said that attendants at her May 17 wedding would wear strapless gowns with net stoles and Mr. Nichols told her he would not permit the bare-shoulder dresses in church.

Upon Miss Hedgepath's declaration that the dresses could not be changed, in time for the wedding, the pastor referred the policy question to the church body, saying he would resign if it permitted the "immodest" attire.

A. D. Dillehay, chairman, said the board of deacons then decided to put the matter to the congregation and "only a very small minority" of the latter agreed with Mr. Nichols' views.
