Columbus — (NC) — University officials lack the facilities to weed out teachers who are Communist Party members, ex-Communist Dr. Bella V. Dodd declared here.

It is not a question of a breach of freedom when government committees are forced to investigate communism in colleges and universities, she said, adding that such committees represent the agency best able to do the job.

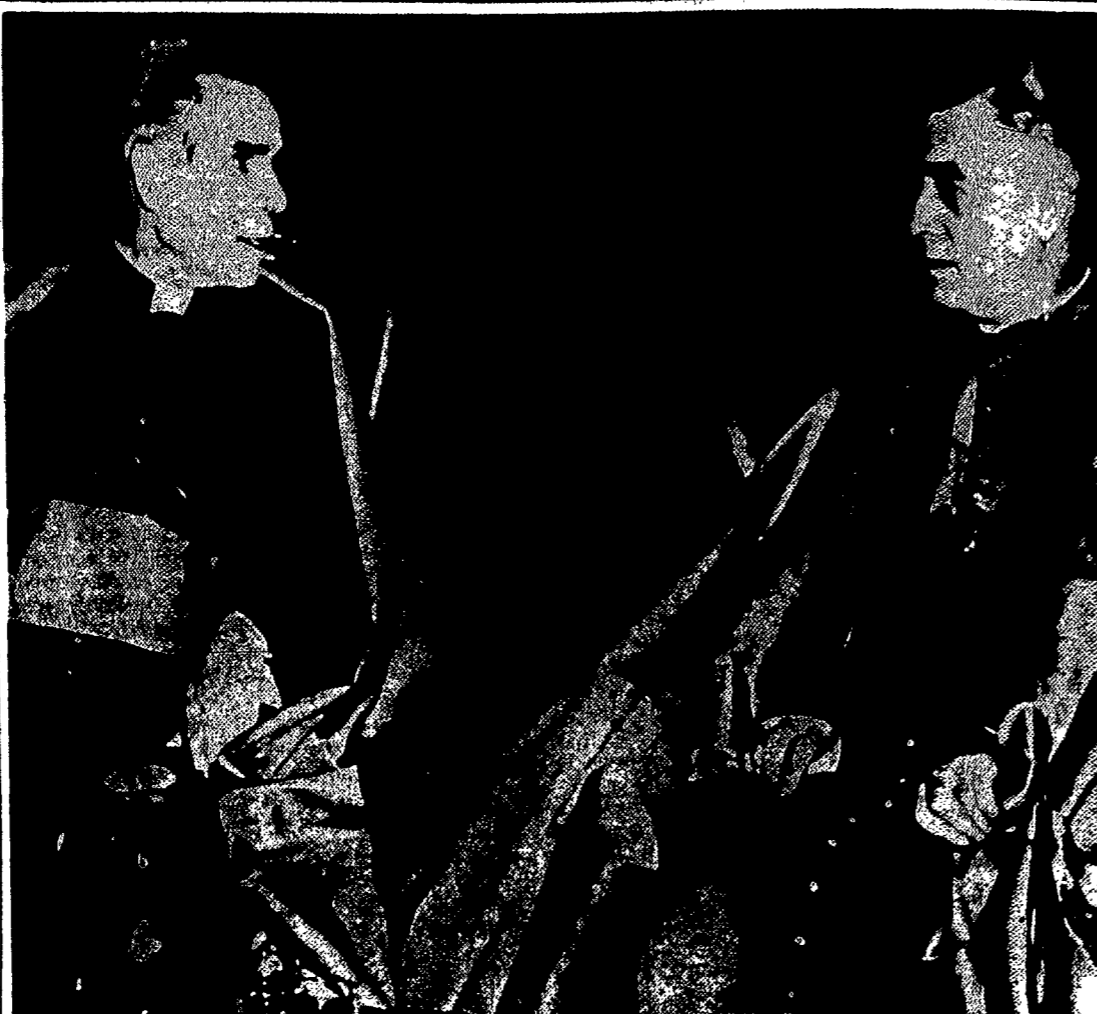

"Hundreds of professors have given their talents to communism," Dr. Dodd stated in an exclusive interview for the Catholic Times, official organ of the diocese of Columbus. In her position as a college professor in the 1940's, Dr. Dodd said, she was able to organize Red cells in New York City and rise to a position close to the inner circle of U.S. Communists.

She stated that Communists on college faculties particularly are dangerous in their influence because of the prestige of their positions. Dr. Dodd was in Columbus to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Dr. Dodd now teaches the philosophy of communism at St. John's University in New York and holds that teachers have a duty to show clearly how the Communist Party operates so that youth will be made aware of its true meaning and the threat it carries.

Dr. Dodd stated that "if America is saved from the menace, the Catholic Church must be given credit." She herself returned to the Church after renouncing Communism.

Bishop Warns Mau Mau Terror Spreading

BISHOP HALL said that only one group has remained untouched by the Mau-Maus -- a group of priests and nuns who maintain missions in the trouble area. The Bishop said that for some reason, these missionaries have not been attacked or mistreated.

and eat with their guns handy, never knowing when or where the Mau-Maus will strike next.

HE SAID that even though many of the natives are flocking to towns, taking jobs and becoming detribalized, they remain true to their Mau Mau oath, which is taken in blood and pledges them to death for standing in the way of White residents at the Mau-Mau camp, but natives as well have been brutally hacked to death for standing in the way of the Mau Mau terror campaign against Whites and other foreigners in Africa.

Priest Starts Catholic Paper In Moscow

(N.C.W.C. News Service) Washington — A modest Catholic publication has made its appearance in the Soviet capital. It is only a parish bulletin but it appears each week in English and in French. Its originator, editor and publisher is Father Georges Bissonnette, American Assumptionist priest in Moscow in accordance with the stipulations of the Roosevelt-Litvinov agreement of 1933, when U. S. recognition was granted the Soviet Union.

News of the parish bulletin was related here by Father Wilfred Dufault, superior general of the Assumptionist Fathers.

FATHER BISSONNETTE'S parish bulletin consists of two or three large mimeographed sheets each week. The writing and mimeographing is done by the priest himself. It always contains a sermonette, parish news, and a listing of the hours of services, catechetical instructions, etc.

The bulletin was started by Father Bissonnette in April. Its title—"The Voice in the Wilderness."

Father Bissonnette celebrated three Masses each Sunday for diplomatic personnel in the Soviet capital. The Masses are generally held in the chapel in the priest's apartment. On special occasions the Masses have been held at other places, such as the more spacious residence of an ambassador. The chapel can accommodate about 25 people.

Cuban Police Arrest Catholic Leaders For Protesting Film

Havana, Cuba — (NC) — Catholic Action groups were joined here by newspapers in protests against the arrest of several priests and Catholic lay leaders which followed after members of the Legion of Decency walked out of a local cinema where an offensive film was being shown.

The arrests were ordered by Interior Minister Ramon O. Heredia who apparently interpreted the walk-out as a defiance by the Legion of the official Film Review Commission which had examined the film and approved it for public exhibition.

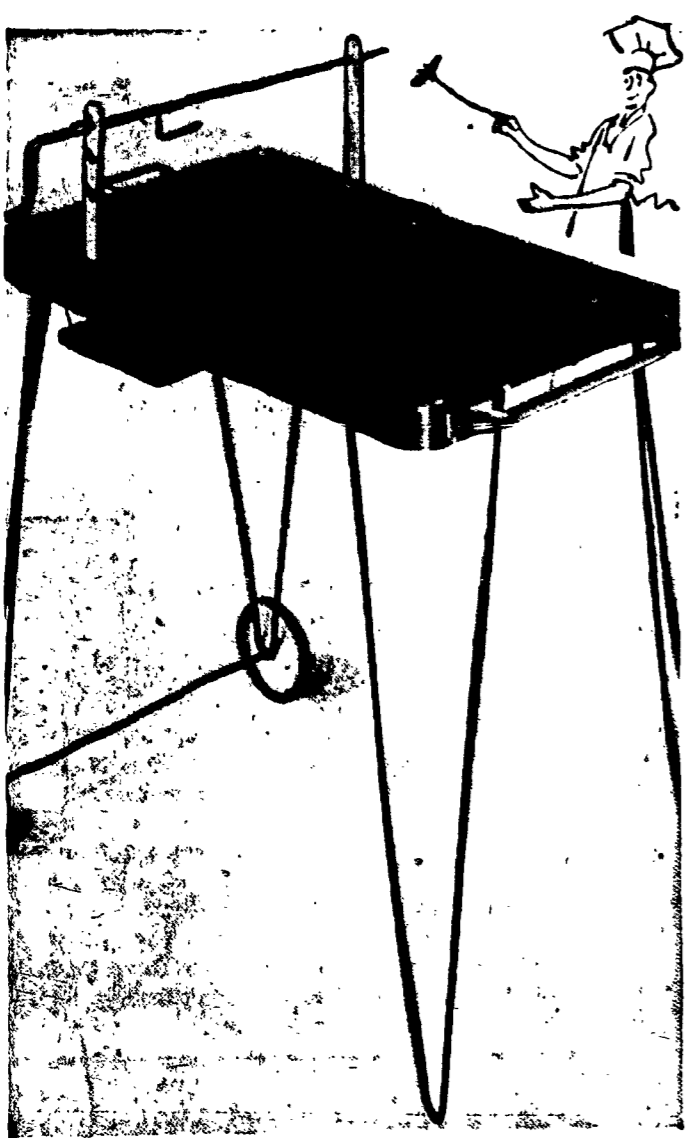

This was the second time within the past month or so that Catholic leaders had been detained by police officials. The first arrests occurred during May when government troops broke up a patriotic demonstration at Guanajay staged by the Catholic Action Youth Federation, allegedly because "partisan political speeches" had been made. The Catholic leaders, who were released shortly afterwards, denied the charge.

THE NEW ARRESTS came after Minister Heredia had issued a statement to the press branding any form of protest against films passed by the review board as disorderly. Those arrested included two Jesuit priests, Fathers Amando Llorente and Modesto Barbelto, and a Jesuit religious, Brother Agudo, all of whom belong to a Catholic university alumni group. They were routed out of their beds at night and interrogated at length before being released.

Members of the alumni organization have figured among groups which have protested in a peaceful manner against the showing of improper films. According to the police, the arrested Jesuits were among those involved in the cinema incident. Also arrested were Dr. Jose Lavastida, president of the Legion of Decency, and two other officials of the organization, Dr. Francisco Palacios and Dr. Valentin Arenas. The three men, all lawyers, were taken into custody by the secret police. They were set free after having been spread of communion.

THE FILM WHICH caused the Legion of Decency members to walk out of the "Rodi" cinema was an Italian production entitled, "The Woman Who Invented Love." As soon as he was informed of what had happened, Minister Heredia ordered the review board to examine the film again and attend the showing himself. He then issued a statement in which he said: "Nothing was found in the film to hurt the sensibilities of persons who habitually attend the shows that are given in a colosseum of a country of progress and cultural standards such as ours. The decision for public exhibition of the film was ratified."
