

594 Missioners In Red China

Hong Kong — (NC) — Only 594 of the once 8,700 foreign Catholic missionaries were still in China as the Red regime set in motion a new wave of persecution against the Church.

This total of foreign missionaries has already been further reduced by the arrival here of almost a score of ousted missionaries within the past few days.

THE AMERICAN Catholic missionaries in China now number only 30, 17 of whom are in jail. Another five are under house arrest. The total of American Catholic missionaries still in Red China is but a small fraction of the close to 500 who carried on the apostolate there before the Reds seized control.

Following is a complete list of the American Catholic missionaries still in Red China.

The reminder was published by order of the Bishop in the Lafayette edition of Catholic Action of the South, diocesan newspaper, over the signature of Magr. John A. Wigler, Chancellor. The announcement called on pious Catholics to remind the Catholic woman not to "forget her dignity, her self-respect and the elementary principles of Christian modesty" by taking part in a bathing beauty contest "in which her person is indecently exposed."

The warning said that one who does take part in such a contest may be denied the sacraments until she has repaired to the best of her ability the scandal given. If she is a minor, her parents shall be required to make the same reparation under penalty of being denied the sacraments.

Restoration Of Religion In Public Schools Urged By Bishop

(N.C.W.C. NEWS SERVICE)

Rochester, N. H. — Bishop Matthew F. Brady has called for the restoration of religion in the schools of the nation.

He declared "the alarming trend in American life toward indifference in religion and unstable morality is adequate proof that the home and church are insufficient in themselves for the burden placed upon them."

Addressing more than 7,000 persons at the third annual state Holy Hour at the Rochester Fairgrounds, Bishop Brady declared "to educate for the objective of 'good citizenship' is laudable in itself, but it inevitably places the welfare of the state as a principle above and beyond the welfare of the individual. It tends to make the citizen a servant of the state and become personalized in the process. It is the contrary before the thesis."

Bishop Brady, former Episcopal chairman of the Education Department, National Catholic Welfare Conference, said modern history presents "a shocking picture of enslaved and miserable peoples as the logical consequence of the all-powered state," and warned that "the fate of Babylon, Greece and Rome may be upon us and perhaps much nearer than we care to believe."

The Bishop declared that a brief glance at contemporary American morality with its mounting divorce rate, broken homes, youthful delinquency, dishonesty in business, disregard for truth, "corruption and treason in high places and the rampant perjury in its courts of justice is indicative of growing moral decay." He added that it also indicated that "the home and the church have failed to preserve a moral tone in the whole nation."

Prelate's Help Asked In Ousting Sisters From Public Schools

Louisville, Ky.—(NC)—A Protestant group seeking removal of nuns from Kentucky's public schools has asked Archbishop John A. Floersch of Louisville to intervene with local school boards regarding Sisters.

The Archbishop replied that to ask an ecclesiastical official to interfere in the operation of public school boards seems a "strange" request from a group that professed allegiance to the principle of separation of Church and State.

Affiliated with Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, the committee has announced its intention to seek a court ruling to bar more than 100 Sisters now employed as public school teachers in the State.

THE GROUP, called the Kentucky Free Public Schools Committee, is comprised mainly of Protestant clergymen. A delegation which called on Archbishop Floersch included five officers of the group, and the Rev. E. N. Wilkinson of Parkland Baptist Church, Louisville, and Judge Eugene Siler of Williamsburg, Ky., unsuccessful candidate for the governorship of Kentucky.

Regarding the meeting, the Louisville Chancery issued the following statement: "Archbishop Floersch assured them that none of these public schools are operated by the Catholic Church, every one of them being under the complete and exclusive control of the respective local school boards."

"DURING THE conference various members of the committee aired some particular grievance from their own district of the State and asked the Archbishop to intervene with the local school boards to eliminate these alleged abuses. To this the Archbishop replied that it seemed to him that matters of this nature should be taken up directly with the local school boards in question. It seemed strange to him that they should be asking an ecclesiastical official to interfere in the operation of legitimately constituted school boards, while at the same time they were professing allegiance to the principle of separation of Church and State."

He also is looking forward to meeting again his two sisters, both of whom are nuns. "The Archbishop assured them that as far as he knows religion is not taught during school hours except in conformity with the released-time program authorized by the Kentucky Legislature."

"FURTHERMORE, he cautioned them that they would be going contrary to the whole spirit of our American ideals if they would seek to bar a teacher from being employed because of religion."

Last year 101 Sisters were employed as public school teachers in the Archdiocese of Louisville and 15 in the Diocese of Owensboro. Altogether, 20 elementary schools and four high schools in the Archdiocese of Louisville and two elementary and one high school in the Diocese of Owensboro are involved.

The committee also suggested that it will seek to change Kentucky law which now permits parochial school children to ride public school buses if supplemental funds are provided by fiscal courts.
