

SPEAKS AT NOTRE DAME

Archbishop John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., of Philadelphia, is shown as he addressed more than 900 religious superiors and novices at the Institute of Spirituality at the University of Notre Dame here. He is standing before the beautiful Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes on the university's campus. The Institute seeks to provide a firm theological formation for those in their responsibilities as superiors and novices. (EWS Photo)

'Heroic' Motive Urged For Religious Vocations

Notre Dame, Ind. — (RNS) — Superiors of religious women were urged here to "aspire to the heroic" in aspirants to the religious life, by Archbishop John F. O'Hara, C.S.C.

Archbishop O'Hara said that "young people are capable of heroic sacrifices and they have a proper motive."

THE INSTITUTION, which is an outgrowth of the Congress of Religious Life held here last year, aims to provide a firm theological formation for those in their responsibilities as superiors and novices.

Archbishop O'Hara called on the laity and religious to join the Church's bishops and priests in combating "the works of iniquity in today's world, when for the first time the powers of atheism have a world-wide organization."

In a reference to the armed forces, Archbishop O'Hara noted that nearly 5,000 veterans are now studying for the priesthood, many of them with the Trappists.

New Headgear Adopted by Loretto Sisterhood

Notre Dame, Ind. — (RNS) — When the 21,000 students of the University of Notre Dame at the foot of the Cross receive their new headgear next month, they will find their new headgear a new religious veil.

The 2,000 professed Sisters of the Loretto Sisterhood, who are the designers of the new headgear, said they hope the new headgear will help to identify their religious life.

The new headgear is a simple, practical design, and is made of a light-colored fabric. It is designed to be worn over the traditional veil.

Idlewild Shrine To Have Stones Of Historic Churches

New York — (NC) — Stones from shrines and historic churches in 100 countries will be used in building a shrine to Our Lady of Fatima at the Catholic chapel planned for Idlewild International Airport here.

workers — is imperative. The gUILD has 2,500 members, drawn from airline workers and customs and immigration service employees. During the past year, Mass has been celebrated on Sunday mornings in the airport restaurant. The chapel is to be built on a quarter-acre tract of undeveloped land next to the terminal building, with the shrine located in front of it. The gUILD has arranged for the airlines using Idlewild to bring in the stones for the shrine free of charge. No stone is to be more than one foot square.
