Reason For Parochial School Cited By Bishop Opening Waverly Drive

BY ELIZABETH TUCCINARDI

Waverly — His Excellency Bishop Kearney, of Rochester, addressed more than 75 workers at a kick-off dinner Saturday night in the St. James social hall to open a campaign to raise $75,000 toward the construction of a new school in Waverly.

Bishop Kearney told the group that the reason for Catholic schools is that Christ may be brought daily into the lives of children, and this cannot be adequately done within the one hour allowed under the released time program. It should be included in the general texture of education, he said.

General chairman of the drive is Thomas Cary, with Thomas Watts and Henry Kauth as co-chairmen. Atty. John Vallin is special gifts chairman with Dr. Dominic Motay and Louis Boylajac as co-chairmen. William O'Brien, Dann Haas, Robert McNamara and Frank Cafferty are on the survey committee.

Division leaders are Jack McNamara, Edward Wilcox, Joseph Paul, James Nolan, Robert Lougher, Ormer Grace, William Costello, Paul Jones, George Falley and Joseph Nunan.

THE BISHOP likened the campaign workers to an inscription which appears at the base of a statue with broken hands. "You are my hands," G. I. soldiers during the war found the statue in a ruined chapel but hesitated putting it up because of the imperfection. The Bishop told them they would have to serve as the hands for Christ.

The Rev. C. Stuart Hogan, pastor of St. James Church, passed out campaign kits to the eight captains and spoke briefly to the workers. He announced that the top committee had already received pledges amounting to $5,000.

ATTENDING THE dinner also were the Rev. Dr. Charles V. Boyle, associate superintendent of schools in the Rochester diocese, and the Rev. Joseph McCarthy, assistant pastor of St. James.
