

Childhood School Unit Lists Sale

The Guild Unit of the School of the Holy Childhood will have a smorgasbord supper on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 16 and 17 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. followed by a Christmas sale at the school, 215 Andrews St.

The smorgasbord is by ticket only, priced at $2.00 per plate and in the hands of guild members.

The Christmas sale will be held on Friday night, Saturday afternoon and night, Oct. 16 and 17. Many hand-painted articles were donated for the sale as well as hand-dressed dolls.

The School of the Holy Childhood was founded in 1951 by Sister M. St. Mark of the Sisters of St. Joseph for children who need specialized training. The Guild Unit was formed to help the school financially. Proceeds from the supper and bazaar will be used for that purpose. Mrs. Frank McKenna is guild unit president.

Catholic Living Explained To Women By Speakers At Diocesan Convention

"Set Your Will To Serve!" Acting on this slogan, Catholic women's groups throughout the diocese were inspired to Catholic action programs as their representatives met in annual convention at Rochester Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

The women opened their convention by assisting at Mass in Old St. Mary's Church at which His Excellency Bishop Kearney gave the key-note address.

A choir composed of members of the Women's Choral Group, with Mrs. Homer Burbank directing, sang at the Mass.

Delegates to the convention were welcomed by Bishop Kearney who said that the coming Marian year and with the Diocesan Council dedicated to Our Lady of Good Council, the women's organizations should have an outstanding year.

Two things necessary in this troubled world, the Bishop pointed out are religious truth and

JAMES B. KELLEY

Dr. Kelley, a native of New York City, is a young scientist with a reputation for being accurately scientific, soundly Catholic and thoroughly interesting.

He warned of certain modern literature and motion pictures and cited action taken against an objectionable motion picture shown in Rochester.

Highlighting the day's program was the luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce at which His Excellency Bishop Kearney was to be guest of honor and Dr. James Bernard Kelley, Director of Research for Physics Research Laboratories, Inc., New York City, was to be guest speaker.

Dr. Kelley, a native of New York City, is a young scientist with a reputation for being accurately scientific, soundly Catholic and thoroughly interesting.

He is a graduate of Marquette University and taught at New York University and College of the City of New York.

He was to speak on "Positive Catholicism" pointing out that Catholics must learn to state what they are for as well as what they are against. The chip on the shoulder attitude which many Catholics and Catholic groups have adopted, he believes, tends to alienate honest inquiry and honest questioning.

"We have a definite positive program. Let's examine it and present it," is his advice.

Featured during the convention were exhibits produced by chairmen and members of diocesan committees.

Msgr. Burns At First Mass In New NA College Building

Rome — (NC) — The first Mass to be said on the premises of the new North American College here was offered by the college rector, Bishop Martin J. O'Connor, in the infirmary chapel.

Msgr. Richard K. Burns, vice rector, and Sisters of the domestic staff attended the Mass. The infirmary is on the building's seventh floor.

Meanwhile, last-minute preparations are underway at top speed to insure readiness of the main chapel and other buildings for dedication by His Eminence Cardinal Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit in mid-October.

(Among priests of the Diocese of Rochester who are alumni of the college, to attend are: Very Rev. Msgr. John E. Manry, Rev. Dr. Bernard C. Hanna and the Rev. John A. Reddington.)

The main chapel is an imposing edifice in 12th century Roman style, decorated by top-flight contemporary Italian artists with paintings, frescoes, sculpture and mosaics.

It will seat 300 persons and will have 16 altars, three in the chapel proper and the rest in two lower level crypts. Students frequently are ordained before they have finished their full course or in the final few months of their last years. Hence the many altars for their daily celebration of Mass.

The new college will accommodate 300 seminarians. With entering classes of 75 new students, enrollment will reach 190 seminarians for the current scholastic year. Among these 85 of the 129 U. S. archdioceses and dioceses will be represented.

In the graduate division of student priests, who have already occupied the old premises in the Via dell'Umiltà, there are 37 enrolled for the current year. They represent 24 dioceses.

Continual Education

The main objection to the school of experience is that it thinks up a new course every time you get ready to graduate.

THE MOVEMENT started, he said, when young Chicago couples who found their children growing up in a secular world decided to do something about it. They gave example by neighborliness especially to newcomers. They study the liturgy and Gospels but devote most of their time in the movement to making others feel the influence of Christian acts.

"It is not an effort of laymen to take something out of the priest's hands but rather to be helpful where the clergy would be unable to reach the people."

Miss Catherine Wobus, Director of Case Work, Catholic Family Center stressing the work of the Committee Cooperating with Catholic Charities, spoke on "Role of the Volunteer."

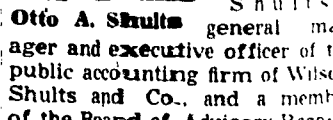

"Love of God is demonstrated in the love of one's neighbor," Miss Wobus said. "Charity is not the prerogative of the professional social worker but the common obligation of all."

"The word 'Catholic' is applied to social work places it in an entirely different orbit."

Resolutions were presented for approval by the Resolutions Committee, comprising Miss Jeanne Schneider, chairman; Mr. Richard Sanderl and Mrs. Theodore Strommeyer.

Decorations were attributed to Mrs. Richard Sanderl; Mrs. Elmer Loritz; Miss Favorite Van Epps and Miss Alice F. Kirk.
