Cornell Course Open For Genesee Staff

New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations, Cornell University, is conducting an eight week course on "Effective Supervision" for supervisory personnel of the Genesee Brewing Co., Inc, which began Wednesday according to John L. Wehle, General Manager of the brewery.

The course, which will be conducted by Phillip L. Burger, Buffalo training consultant, is designed to improve the knowledge of modern techniques for developing cooperation and enthusiasm, to reduce accidents by stressing the human factors in safety, and to point up the responsibilities of the supervisor to himself and his company.

"We expect," said Mr. Wehle, "that this course, presented by the country's outstanding authority on industrial and labor relations, will result in improving the status of our supervisory personnel to the company, and at the same time help our people to become more valuable to themselves from the standpoint of future promotion."
