Holy Rosary HNS Reports Success In Comics Drive

Gratified at the cooperation given neighborhood stores in the parish, members of Holy Rosary Holy Name Society has named a committee to continue the campaign against indecent literature for children being displayed or sold in that section of the city.

The outgoing committee reports success with the store-owners. Objectionable literature, that disapproved by the National Organization of Decent Literature, has disappeared.

The Rev. James Margin, spiritual director of the society will continue as chairman of the Holy Rosary Parish campaign. Personnel of the group carrying on the campaign changes monthly.

ON THE new committee are Joseph Attinasi, Howard J. Long, Robert Cook, Edward E. Gregson, Charles B. Kennedy and Hugh P. Doherty. Donald J. Benson is in charge of publicity.

"We feel that we have made fine progress," Father Margin said, "and we are pleased at the voluntary assistance by storekeepers in keeping this obscene literature off their shelves. The merchants are doing a real service to the youth of our community."

On the committee launching the campaign were: Charles Northcote, William E. Day, Carl E. Lovenguth, Charles F. Magee and Thomas F. O'Brien.

THE SOCIETY seeking to get authority for removal of the objectionable comics and other reading matter has sought it in City Ordinance P. L. No. 1141. They see in this a force for stopping the sale of such literature elsewhere in Rochester.

Asking enforcement, the society has been promised action by Public Safety Commissioner Kenneth C. Twpinson. Distributors as well as retail stores, come under the ban of the law which reads:

"No person, firm or corporation shall sell, give away or in any way furnish or supply to any person under the age of eighteen years any book, magazine or other publication in which there is prominently featured an account of crime or which depicts by the use of drawings or photographs, accounts of an indecent, immoral, obscene, lewd or lascivious nature or the commission or attempted commission of the crime of arson, assault, burglary, kidnapping, mayhem, rape, murder, larceny, manslaughter, prostitution, crimes against nature or extortion."

Nurses' Dinner Set To Honor Bishop Kearney

KC Council Gets Charter

Influence they can exert for good in the community in which they are organized was impressed upon members of the new St. John Fisher Council, Knights of Columbus Supreme Director William E. Burke of Utica at a dinner Saturday night.

The dinner, held in the Firemen's Exempt Club, featured presentation of the charter to the newly organized council by John J. Kinney of Rochester, state chairman of the lecturer's committee and former district deputy who added in the council's formation. Grand Knight William Clifton Joslin received the charter.

Other speakers were State Deputy Denis Mansfield of Saratoga Springs who encouraged the extending of "God's kingdom on earth" and State Secretary John Symonds of New York who stressed the achievements of Columbianism.

Supreme Director Burke cited the duties and opportunities for Catholic laymen enrolled in the Knights of Columbus.

FATHER SMITH spoke at the Rochester Diocesan Holy Name Union Rally in Red Wing Stadium on Oct. 6, 1946 and before that at the Catholic University Campaign dinner in Hotel Seneca in 1940.

Besides being nationally known as a speaker, Father Smith has had wide experience in Holy Name Society and editor of St. John's Hospital staff, Joseph Jr. and Vincent J. Iuppa; two daughters, Mrs. Donald Barnes and Mrs. Michael Rizzo; three brothers, Michael, Louis and Frank Iuppa; two sisters, Mrs. Rose Attinasi and Mrs. Andrew Calabrese; twenty grandchildren.
