Psychiatrists May Get Patron Saint, Dr. Necchi

Washington (NC) — Psychiatrists may get their own patron saint if beatification proceedings continue to advance for Doctor Vico Necchi, "psychiatrist and servant of God."

The Italian psychiatrist who died of cancer in 1930 after a life of service to medicine and to the Church, may well become the heavenly patron of today's psychiatrists. Father James Vanderveldt, O.F.M., priest-psychiatrist of the Catholic University of America, said in the Bulletin of the Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists.

day with "supernaturalizing" of Freud and Adler."

BELIEVING at first that he had a vocation to the priesthood, Dr. Necchi later decided that medicine was to be his life. He married and had three children. Through his influence, one of his close friends who was violently anticlerical became a Franciscan priest and later lead Necchi into the field of psychiatry. Because of his hurriedly and work among the poor, newspapers in Milan carried one headline after his death—"A Saint Has Died."

Boys Prefer Girls Like Girl 'Who Married Dear Old Dad'

Cincinnati (NC) — Seniors at Roger Bacon High school in nearby St. Bernard, Ohio, prefer a girl pretty much like the girl who married dear old dad.

The Baconian, paper of the boys' school, commented by the Franciscan Fathers, polled the 100 seniors. The result—an overwhelming preference for girls who (1) Don't smoke, (2) prefer a home to a career, (3) "act their age," and (4) are NOT the athletic type.

Personally rated higher than beauty in the seniors' esteem by almost four to one.

Girls who "go for boys with flashy cars" were rejected 138 to 12. The pollsters hinted that the dissenting dozen may be owners of "flashy cars."

Asked if they would be in favor of co-education at Roger Bacon, 101 seniors answered yes, 49 said no. The pollsters, John Andrews and Charles Adkins, said they failed to turn up one senior without definite opinions on all questions concerning the subject.
