Hits 'Divisive' Charges At Nazareth Commencement

Dr. James M. O'Neill, Nazareth College Commencement speaker Wednesday afternoon, denounced as irresponsible assumptions, totally unsupported by objective evidence, charges that non-public schools are "divisive" and "undemocratic."

Those who have made such charges, he said, are a threat to religious and educational freedom in the United States. Referring to advocates of an education in public schools for all American youth, he warned that uniform, government-controlled education is a necessary aspect of all dictatorships.

Dr. O'Neill is the former chairman of the departments of speech of Brooklyn College and the Universities of Wisconsin and Michigan. He is the author of 14 books, among them "Religion and Education Under the Constitution" and "Catholicism and American Freedom." His latest book is "Catholics in Controversy."

HE WAS PRINCIPAL speaker at the 27th annual Commencement exercises of Nazareth College. His Excellency Bishop Kearney conferred degrees upon 67 young women, 13 of whom were graduated with academic honors. Dr. O'Neill's topic was "The Place of Religious Education in America."

In a free society, he said, it is inevitable that parents will differ in regard to the type of education they want for their children, and their right in this matter will be respected.

Calling for an end of false accusations and drifts toward totalitarianism in the name of liberty, Dr. O'Neill concluded that believers in diversified culture, American freedom and democracy should recognize that both religious and public schools are necessary and desirable, and should strive for the improvement of both.

DR. O'NEILL briefly reviewed the history of American education to show how deeply rooted it is in religion. He pointed out that the earliest schools in what is now the United States—Catholic mission schools of the late 16th century and Protestant New England common schools of the early 17th century—were all established under religious auspices and were permeated with religious content.

For decades, he said, the Protestant religion was an integral part of public schools. Deploring the modern campaign against religion in education, he said the function of the religious school in America is to serve God and country, to teach religion and American freedom, and to demonstrate that there is no conflict between them.

Mr. O'Neill is himself wholly a product of non-Catholic education and has never taught in a Catholic institution. He has behind him 40 years experience as a teacher in public schools and six in non-Catholic private schools.

HE HAS TAUGHT on all levels, from the first grade in a country district school to university seminars open only to graduate students. Since his recent retirement from teaching, he has devoted himself to writing and lecturing. He makes his home in Lakeville, Conn.

Telecast On Shroud Gets Record Mail

Chicago, Ill. —(NC)— A Good Friday telecast on the Shroud of Turin has brought close to 13,000 letters to Father Francis L. Filas, S.J. of Loyola University.

The mail response—considered exceptional by officials of the American Broadcasting Company which carried the Good Friday afternoon program—included letters from people of all major faiths. The majority asked that the program be rescheduled as an annual affair at a more convenient evening viewing time.

Father Filas' telecast offered pictorial evidence of the genuineness of the Shroud of Turin, reputed to be the cloth in which Christ was buried after His crucifixion.

Texas Catholics Plan University

Dallas —(NC)— Pledges for funds for a new Catholic university for the Diocese of Dallas-Fort Worth already total $1,399,566, 70% of the goal, it was announced at a report meeting on May 25. More pledges are still being reported.

The figure included $576,865 pledged in an extensive parish solicitation drive throughout the diocese on University Sunday, May 16.

Campaign chairman E. Constantin, Jr., said the pledges coming from every section of the diocese "show how widespread is the recognition among our people that we need this university to educate our young Catholic men and women and to train nuns for our parochial schools."

Pope Names New Church Chancellor

Vatican City —(RNS)— His Eminence Celso Cardinal Constantini, Secretary of the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith, has been named Chancellor of the Holy Roman Church by Pope Pius XII.

Cardinal Constantini, 78, succeeds to a post in the Apostolic Chancery vacant since the death of Pio Cardinal Boggiani in 1942. The office was created by Pope John XXII in 1319.

Anne Elizabeth Gawer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Gawer, 57 Tottenham Rd., Our Lady of Mercy High School, cum laude in business.

Omitted from the list of Nazareth College graduates published in last week's Courier Journal were the names of Mary Ann DeLaura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony DeLaura, 336 Bay St., and Dorothy Jean Fischer, daughter of Mrs. Emma Fischer, 40 Longacre Rd. Both received the Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in English.

'Loyalty To Church' Termed Purpose Of Catholic College

What their parents and faculty want from them more than anything else, the Rev. Joseph M. Egan, S.T.D., told 67 Nazareth College seniors Sunday morning, is loyalty to the Church.

Father Egan, professor of dogmatic theology at St. Bernard's Seminary, preached the baccalaureate sermon at a solemn high Mass Sunday to begin Commencement week activities. His Excellency Bishop Kearney presided from the throne.

Loyalty to the church, Father Egan said, consists in going through life with a Catholic head, a Catholic heart and Catholic hands. These "areas of loyalty," he explained, constitute the purpose of a Catholic college. They parallel the very purpose of life: to know, love and serve God, and be happy with Him in eternity.

FATHER EGAN ventured that the Nazareth College faculty would agree with his conviction that of all the subject matter learned by the young women during the last four years, the knowledge of God and intellectual conviction of the truths of faith are by far the most important.

Simply knowing God, however, is not enough, he added. He urged the graduates to love God, the Supreme Good, and to carry with them the scale of values they acquired at the Catholic college for women.

Finally, he concluded, loyalty to the Church demands use of the hands in the service of God. While the Church had been on the defensive for some 400 years after the reformation, he said, it is now "on the march."

AN ACTIVE lay apostolate, Father Egan advised, one which can and will apply the principles of Christianity to everyday life, is needed.

Father Egan began his sermon by noting that Commencement time is a period of "mixed emotion." Looking backward, he observed, students experience a feeling of pride in a job well done, and gratitude to their parents and faculty. As for the future, he said, the emotions are likely to be those of hope and fear.

Admittedly trying to summarize for the young women, in a few minutes, the most important lessons they learned in college, Father Egan chose his message on "Loyalty to the Church" as that which he would have them retain for the rest of their lives.
