Parents Of Retarded Children Named Father, Mother Of Year

Lowell, Mass. — (NC) — An Army sergeant and his wife, who have "a heavy cross to bear" have been selected by Boston's Archbishop Richard J. Cushing as the "Father and Mother of the Marian Year" in the Boston archdiocese.

Master Sgt. Charles and Mary Duffy, both 34, have three daughters, all mentally retarded. The girls, Charlene, 7, Frances, 10, and Maryann, 12, are pupils at St. Coletta's School in Hanover, Massachusetts which the Archbishop established for "exceptional" children, as he prefers to call them.

In honoring the Duffy family, the Archbishop said: "They carry their cross with such patience, resignation and cheerfulness they are an example to everybody." Neither medicine nor psychiatry has yet been able to discover a cure for the affliction, and only patient teaching can prepare them for some sort of life. States Army. His wife keeps the house and visits their children regularly. She is president

Indianapolis, Ind. — (NC) — A campaign to stop all Sunday grocery shopping by July 4 in Marion County has been launched by an interfaith committee here. More than 125,000 leaflets urging the public to "stop buying on Sunday" were distributed in churches of all denominations.

Among religious groups co-operating in the campaign are the Indianapolis Deacons Councils of Catholic Men and Women. "Most of the principal stores have agreed to close," a spokesman said. "But they cannot continue to close if the others remain open. It's up to the church-goers to convince those others they ought to close."

A similar campaign against Sunday shopping is underway in Cincinnati with the strong support of Catholic groups and of labor unions.

Vatican Signs Concordat With Latin Republic

Vatican City — (NC) — A concordat has been signed here to regulate relations between the Holy See and the Dominican Republic.

The text of the agreement was not made public, but an anonymous, Vatican City newspaper, nunciature in Osvatore said it was "in harmony with the noble traditions of a people whose history goes back to the time when, after the discovery of America by Columbus, their island became the first center for the expansion of Christianity in the New World."

THE CEREMONIAL signing of the concordat took place in the Hall of Congregations in the Vatican Palace. The agreement was signed on behalf of the Holy See by Msgr. Domenico Tardini, Vatican Pro-Secretary of State for Extraordinary Affairs, and by General Rafael Leonidas-Trujillo, former President of the Dominican Republic, on behalf of his country.

After affixing his signature to the document General Trujillo declared that it symbolized his government's "confirmed adherence to the Catholic Church as the protectors of order and Christian civilization in the world."

Immediately after the signing of the concordat, General Trujillo was received in private audience by Pope Pius XII. The audience was the first of its kind since the Holy Father's illness.

Protestants Urged To Copy Catholics In Labor Field

Buffalo, N. Y. — (NC) — Protestant leaders could take a few cues from the Catholic Church on how to make the church "more meaningful" to American workers, a labor leader declared here at a symposium on "Religion in Our Time."

Speaking at the annual planning conference of the Council of Churches of Buffalo and Erie County, President James Miller of the Greater Buffalo Industrial Union Council (CIO), said that the church has not retained the interest of workers in the last 25 years.

He blamed this on competition with church activity created by modern living, travel, entertainment and new work schedules, all of which have resulted in less church attendance and worship.

"It is my belief," Mr. Miller said, "that the Protestant Church through its ministers and lay leaders could play a more active and constructive role in adjustment of labor-management problems which need conciliation, mediation and sometimes arbitration."

THE LEADERS of the Protestant Church could certainly follow some of the examples of the Catholic Church in keeping the American worker informed that it has more than a passing interest in his welfare. The worker of today is in need of a better understanding of our present highly accelerated mode of living.

Bp. McEntegart Explains Role Of Catholic University

Cleveland — (NC) — The all-important role which the Catholic University of America in the nation's capital must fill in the ever-enlarging picture of Catholic education in the United States was outlined here by Bishop Bryan J. McEntegart, University rector.

The Bishop told members of the Cleveland chapter of the university alumni association at a Communion breakfast that the time has come "to dissipate the fog in the minds of many persons regarding the university," which was founded and is operated by the American Hierarchy.

PART OF THE "fog" the Bishop said has left with too many persons the belief that "the Catholic University is a seminary and with others that it is strictly for religious, and not enough with the knowledge that is the 'crown and touchstone' of Catholic educational life in America."

He pointed out that last year the enrollment totaled 3,385 students, only a third of whom were priests, nuns and Religious. He said that 45 per cent of the students were engaged in graduate studies, which is a much higher percentage than the number of graduate students in many of the older universities. Most universities, he said, limit their graduate students to 15 per cent of the student body because of the high operating costs.

THE CATHOLIC University from the standpoint of age, the Bishop said, "is a mere toddler, since it is only 65 years old, but it has made great strides in those 65 years."

He emphasized that the university was founded "to train Catholic leaders in all branches of knowledge" and added that he is striving to have the institution fulfill the idea of a university as defined by Cardinal Newman — "a place of course to which people come from all quarters to get all kinds of knowledge."

Bishop McEntegart said that the university's students last school term came from 47 States, the District of Columbia and 40 different foreign nations. He said that the institution depends mainly for support on tuition and the annual Catholic University of America collection taken up in all parishes in the United States.

HE ADDED that the collection last year amounted to $1,133,000 and likened it to the equivalent of a $32-million endowment fund. He added that despite this generosity, the university, like many others, operated on a deficit.

There is a pressing need for the university to do its part in helping to educate the teachers for the estimated additional 14-million students who will be enrolled in all of the nation's elementary and secondary schools by 1965. The Bishop emphasized that an estimate is based on children already born and is not a guess work. He said that in addition it has been estimated that there will be an additional 2,500,000 in the nation's colleges and universities.

Catholic Schools Save Millions For Taxpayers

Newark, N. J. — (NC) — Expenditures for children attending Catholic schools in the Newark archdiocese and the Paterson diocese have saved the public school systems almost forty million dollars in one year, a newspaper figured here.

According to attendance records at Catholic schools, 112,837 children attended Newark archdiocesan schools, and 16,717 children were in Paterson parochial schools this year, representing a savings to public educators of $38,661,438.

The figures are based on estimates for operational expenses only and do not include the cost of buildings and facilities that public schools would have to provide for the children.
