

CYA Day Camps Complete Second Week Of Slate

With school days already just a memory, 500 youngsters today complete their second week of a busy schedule of day camping. With day camping becoming more and more popular each season, the Columbus Youth Association has extended its facilities to three neighborhood sites in addition to the headquarters in the Columbus Civic Center.

CYA Camps will run for a total of eight weeks and are divided into two periods of four weeks each.

A WELL-ROUNDED program has been scheduled with the general trend toward making day camping activities as similar as possible to those of "real campers." Counselors have been carefully screened and have been picked for capability and any particular skills which they may pass on to the campers.

Swimming is a major activity and a full schedule for teaching the campers, from the beginners to the more advanced levels, has been arranged. Other sports covered in the program include hiking, bicycling, volleyball, archery, rifle shooting, nature study, mystery rides, cook-outs and a weekly craft project are also included. At the close of the season, outstanding campers will be given awards for various fields of accomplishment.

Highlight of the equipment will again be the annual "Over-Night" at Fowler Mill Park, slated for the final week of camp. The list of overnight campers will include many city youngsters who have never experienced the joys of camping out and will give them their first taste of real outdoor living.

Although day camp has been primarily designed for youngsters, parents are heartily welcomed to participate in the programs, wherever possible.

A definite family unity is noted in this type of program and in line with this several family activities are listed, such as family picnics, family swim parties and a possible family over-night campment. CYA leaders said a cross-section of day camp parents are working in close cooperation with the CYA staff in planning these activities.

General director of CYA day camps is Helen Smith. Miss Barbara Vail is director at St. Michael's. Thomas Nixon at St. Andrew's and Gerald Klein is directing Camp Ave. Maria at Holy Redeemer. Howard F. Meath is program coordinator of all camps.

TO WORK AMONG INDIANS

THREE GIRLS in the summer caravan going to work among Indians in the northwest reservations are: (from left) Misses Catherine Barney, Rena Welch and Marian Dickerson. Miss Welch is from Caledonia and Miss Barney from Auburn. They have volunteered through Father Cullen of the Marquette League for Catholic Indian Missions, 259 4th Ave., New York, 10, N. Y.

3 Area Girls Join Summer Caravan To Aid Missions

Three girls from the Rochester area are among new recruits to the Lay Apostolate of the Marquette League for Catholic Indian Missions. They are Elizabeth Lamendola, Rochester; Rena Welch, Caledonia, and Catherine Barney, Auburn.

THESE GIRLS will be among the summer caravan to the northwest Indian reservations. Young men and women from almost every state in the Union have offered to serve in the Lay Apostolate according to Father Cullen of the Marquette League.

To many this means sacrificing a vacation and digging into the savings account to pay fare and other expenses to a distant assignment.

Urgent requests from missions include a nurse, prefects, assistant cook and seamstress, and an athletic coach.

THE MISSIONS are supported by donations from non-Indian communities. During these inflation years, with prices up and donations down, the missionaries are having quite a struggle. Progress has been made—over 100,000 of the 400,000 Indians and Eskimos in the United States are Catholics. With almost two-thirds of the rest pagans, there is much pioneer work to be done.

"The Indians are ours for the asking," says Father Cullen. "The Indian country is a neglected region, lacking adequate schools and hospitals. Schools and care of the sick are main avenues leading to conversions. But unfortunately we have no hospitals for the Indians and our mission schools are forced to turn away girls each term because of the lack of space. Not only from the humane angle should Catholics seek to help the neglected Indians," continued the priest, "but also to fulfill the command of Our Lord to bring the Gospel to all nations."

Benedictine monks of Mount Saviour Monastery, Madison Road of Hendy Hollow, Big Flats, near Elmira, will celebrate the feast known as the Solemnity of Saint Benedict on Sunday, July 11. This is the second feast of the great founder of the Benedictines, the first occurring on March 21.

For the Solemnity of St. Benedict, the relic of the saint will be exposed for the veneration of the faithful in the monastery chapel from Vespers at 4 p.m. Saturday, July 10, through Vespers and Benediction at 4 p.m. Sunday, High Mass on Sunday at 9 a.m. will be celebrated by the Very Rev. Damasus Winzen, prior, who will also preach. The public is welcome to attend this and all other services at the monastery.

ST. BENEDICT, known as the Patriarch of the Monks of the West, was born in 480. He founded the famous monastery of Monte Cassino in 529 and after writing his famous Rule died there in 547. His influence through the Benedictine Rule and the monasteries which observed it, had an enormous influence on the conversion of Europe to the Faith, on the civilization and education of the people on the development of agriculture, architecture and the arts.

The Benedictines spread rapidly and for some time were the only religious order in the Western Church. The 7th to the 12th centuries are known as "the Benedictine Centuries," so great was the influence of St. Benedict's monks in the life of the Church and also of the nations in which they were established.

The Order passed through one of the most terrible moments of its history when, during the French Revolution and Napoleonic Wars it was almost wiped out. A remarkable revival began in 1835, which has continued to the present day, and has seen the Order grow from a remnant of a few hundred monks to about 11,000. The Benedictines first came to the United States in 1846, and now number about 2400 in this country.

MOUNT SAVIOUR, one of the youngest of all Benedictine monasteries, was founded three years ago and has in that time grown from a membership of five to 22. It is the only Benedictine monastery in New York State.

Despite the influence of the Benedictines in missionary work in scholarship, in agriculture and the arts, the life of the monks is devoted primarily to prayer, especially the Church's liturgical prayer, to which are devoted about five hours each day, and to the labor which is necessary for the maintenance of the monastery, the farm work, house work, repairing, building, cooking and cleaning and many other everyday chores.

The various hours of the Divine Office are chanted at regular intervals daily in the monastery chapel, dedicated to the Queen of Peace, from 4 a.m. till 7 p.m.
