Womanhood

...giving it the necessary recognition and accreditation, and cleared the way for a happy commencement. The first degrees were conferred on June 15, 1924, to a class numbering fifteen young women.

SEPTEMBER 1924 marked the removal of the College, with a student body of more than 120 young women, to the Augustine Street campus, the building behind Aquinas Institute and now the residence for the Basilian Fathers. With expanded facilities, the College began to attract students from an ever-widening geographical area, and the decade following witnessed a corresponding growth in local student registrations.

Curriculum offerings were expanded so as to include in addition to the traditional programs in the liberal arts and sciences, professional preparation in business, music, social work, and teacher education.

Over 300 students returned from the Christmas recess, Jan. 19, 1945, to the present East Avenue campus of more than two hundred acres, where the early English Gothic buildings had just been completed.

MODERN and attractive in every detail, they represent the culmination of years of planning.

The Administration Building houses well equipped laboratories, lecture halls, library, speech theatre, student lounge, student personnel rooms, faculty apartments, offices, administration offices, reception rooms, and elevators.

A cloister walk connects the Administration Building with the Gymnasium-Auditorium and Cafeteria, attractive in decor. A system of inter-building tunnels connects these buildings with the larger residence hall, Medaille Hall.

In Medaille Hall are located, in addition to the recently decorated student rooms, the residence dining hall, student lounge, reception rooms and other student personnel facilities. Three smaller residence halls, LEFAY, St. Joseph's, Santa Maria house senior and freshman resident students.

Sister of St. Joseph inspects Cadet School

Cadet Training Offered To Boys

Sisters of St. Joseph offer program of discipline for mind, body at Cadet School

BOYS IN CADET uniform snap to attention at Nazareth Hall, Rochester, as smartly as any servicemen on dress parade.

The Sisters of St. Joseph established this resident and day school located at 180 Rainier Park, in 1894, and reorganized it as a cadet school in 1932. The cadet program, the Sisters explain, provides an advanced physical training and strict mental discipline for boys of elementary school age.

The work of the school covers that of primary, intermediate and grammar grades. The curriculum follows the requirements of the elementary schools of the Diocese of Rochester and fulfills the Regents requirements of the State of New York.

The moral and intellectual guidance of the cadet is under the constant direction of the Sisters of St. Joseph whose lives are devoted entirely to Catholic education and whose devotion to their religious vocation makes them ideal instructors of youth.

At Nazareth Hall Cadet School, as at all schools directed by the Sisters of St. Joseph, the Sisters stress the importance of knowing how to study rather than mere absorption of classroom information.

The Sisters of St. Joseph who have pioneered in so many schools throughout the Diocese, are now completing the third year of the cadet program at Nazareth Hall.
