Texas Bishop Raps Films, Urges Box-Office Boycott

Dallas, Tex.—(NC)—The Bishop of Dallas-Fort Worth shrikes out at lowgrade movies in his diocesan paper, the Texas Catholic, this weekend and urges readers to give "the absent treatment" to films of low moral tone.

Bishop Thomas K. Gorman says in his column, "The Shepherd Tells his Tale," that it is becoming more evident each day "that a crisis has arisen in the matter of public showing of movies rated unfit by basic moral standards."

"Even the judges in our courts," he continued "seem to have put on rose tinted spectacles when they view pornography. The collapse of all effective effort to prevent the debauch and brutalizing of the viewing public, adults as well as juvenile, by the cinema seems imminent."

Urging that money be saved for the better shows "when they begin to make them again," the Bishop says the "absent treatment" puts a pinch on the pocketbook and this can arouse a measure of self-interested sense of responsibility in movie producers.

"The absent treatment will also be good medicine for your own soul as well. After all, it is difficult to see how any Catholic who defies the warning of our Legion of Decency about a Class "C" picture and goes to see it in spite of all sound advice can be excused from serious sin. That certainly is good reason for applying the absent treatment medicine," he writes.

ASKING WHY critics reject "so contemptuously" the application of Christian moral principles to motion pictures, the Bishop said it is simply because they have become pragmatists. He added that:

"For them there are no fixed principles, only customs. The only morality is a 'democratic' morality determined by majority vote or even by an omnipotent state. You must realize that to understand the growing prevalence of the amoral attitude toward conduct. Apply this to the movies and you see why in their blindness they reject codes of decency."

Bridal Consultant Joins Varden Studios

Effie Harder Hunt, well known in the fashion field, organization and social activities in Rochester for many years, has returned to Rochester after two years in California — continuing there in the world of fashion she was connected as bridal consultant in the Broadway stores in Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena, Chenshaw and Westchester.

Mrs. Hunt

She will be well remembered locally as Bridal Consultant for McCurdy & Company and for her outstanding book "Brides' Consultant" in which she presents a concise and accurate guide to brides, based on her many years of experience in the bridal consultant field.

Also Mrs. Hunt, an enthusiastic and active member in many social organizations, is known as an interesting speaker.

She has joined the staff of Varden Studios where she will be available to serve her former friends and brides as in the past and as consultant in all photographic needs.

SPORTS

. . . By JACK BUTLER

Frank Thomas, Pittsburgh Pirates

After studying for the priesthood and finding out it wasn't his vocation, Frank Thomas decided to concentrate on baseball and made the grade as the slugging outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Butler

Frank has been a blaster ever since coming under the big tent and his output of four-baggers totals 55 in a little over two seasons.

Frank is a real model for the youngsters to look up to. The big native son of the Smokey City—he's 24 years old, 6'3 and 200 pounds—is a clean-living Pirate who sets a good example on and off the field. Constant that big leaguers are constantly on the spot, as their every move is watched closely, he insists that the few who are fortunate enough to make the majors should be on their guard and at all times do the right thing.

Thomas claims that a big leaguer is like a saint in that Satan is constantly tempting him to fall off the straight and narrow path.

"THAT IS WHY players in both the National and American Leagues have to be so careful so as not to let youth lose faith in them," he declares.

Frank was always a religious young man and continues to be.

He was baptized in St. Casimir's Church, Pittsburgh, and made his First Holy Communion and was Confirmed in St. Agnes Church, in the same city. He also attended the grammar school of the parish and served as one of its altar boys for several years.

He then moved to Mount Carmel Prep and College, in Niagara Falls, Ontario, for four and a half years, where he studied for the priesthood. Like Tommy Henrich, former star of the Yankees, Thomas shone in softball as a pitcher and shortstop and in basketball at Mount Carmel.

THE POPULAR Buccaneer, whose brother Johnny, now a Marine, is a good ball player in his own right, married Dolores Wozniak in Guardian Angel Church in Elliott, Pa. They have two daughters, Joanne Frances and Patricia Ann, two and a half years and five months, respectively.

Our Blessed Mother is Thomas' big favorite and he is constantly praying to her to guide him to do the right thing at all times. He is never without his St. Christopher medal and wears it around his neck at all times.

Frank's biggest thrill in the majors came July 23, 1953, when he hit a grand-slam home run against the Giants in the Polo Grounds with his mother and father looking on. When his pop pulled the French trick of planting a big kiss on his cheek in front of the multitude, Frank wasn't even embarrassed, he was so overjoyed at his big feat.

Discovered by the Pirate ivory hunters in 1947 while he was playing with the Kennedys, a meat market semi-pro team in Pittsburgh, Frank worked his way up through Davenport, Waco, Tallahassee, Charleston and New Orleans. With the Pirates in part of 1951 and '52 and regularly since 1953, he is a big favorite all over the circuit, and has many more big years before him to improve on his 1954 record of 172 hits, 23 homes, 94 RBI and a .298 batting average.

Thomas, who has the interest of the budding star of the sandlots at heart, has a lot of sage advice for him to follow to get to the top. As a matter of fact he has sound sense for all, even the smallest pee wee playing the game.

"Keep your minds occupied and never be too smart to listen to your elders," remarks Frank. "When they give you advice, it is always beneficial. Be a good listener.

"Every youngster who can should tie up with the C.Y.O. or Little League and play all the baseball possible. Attend as many big-league games as you can and watch the way the various stars play their position and benefit by it. Give the game your best up to the hilt and you will be a success."

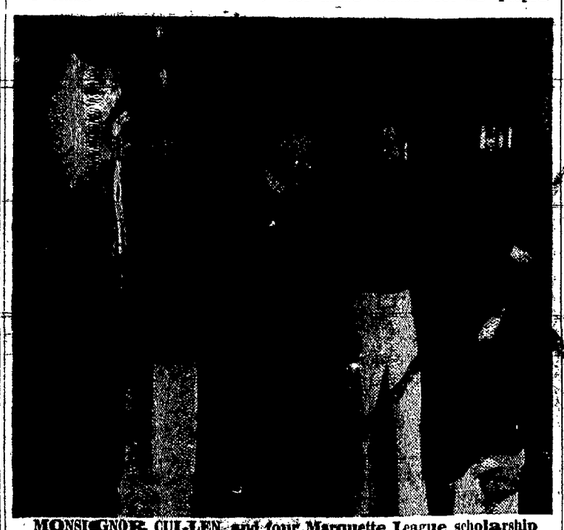
"Please don't be too big to pray," he concludes. "Never be a wise guy and pay particular attention to the advice of your parents and your elders and superiors in school and you can't miss being a success, whether it be in sports or in the business world."

Friend Of Indians Urges Continuance Of Education

Monsignor Cullen of the Marquette League for Catholic Indian Missions has been called the friend of Indian youth. One of the many ways he has tried to aid Indian boys is by them to continue their education.

Every year since 1949, the Marquette League has awarded a four-year high school course to an Eastern school for a student from a reservation school. As the boys are graduated, the Monsignor seeks college scholarships for them.

HENRY DODGE, who was graduated this year from St. Ann's Academy hopes to enter a school of engineering. He is the grandson of Chee Dodge, a grand old patriarch of the Navajos who made four trips to Washington before his death in 1947 to plead for more schools for his people.



MONSIGNOR CULLEN and four Marquette League scholarship boys. Henry Dodge (to the right of the Monsignor), grandson of the first chairman of the Navajo Tribal Council is seeking a scholarship to a school of engineering.
