Scenerama Essay Contest Brings Varied Ideas At St. George School

Reaction of seventh and eighth grade students of St. George School, 535 Hudson Ave. Rochester, to Mission Scenerama Essay contest brought out varied ideas. The Sisters of the Order of St. Francis in charge of the school report. Here are samples: Kathy Gudas, grade 7: "Bishop Sheen will be there, then it must be good." Robert Hecht, grade 8: "On the morning of September twelfth, news was announced that an essay had to be written. Most of the class, including myself, still weary from the long summer vacation, greeted this assignment with an enthusiastic chorus of moans and groans. This essay was to be one of three hundred words and no aids, but, or g's were to be accepted as excuses. "We have a period of two and a half weeks in which to gather our much needed information on the mission, put our thoughts together, and finally, to put it down on good paper. We all knew from the beginning that this was a challenge, not only to our writing power, but to our retaining minds. We gladly accepted the challenge when Sister read the list of prizes. The assignment was now welcomed with enthusiasm and everyone willingly began research on the mission." Regina Poskus, grade 7: "The contest will enable us to find out many accomplishments of our missionaries." David Balashis, grade 7: "I think it was a challenge to participate in a new experience." Robert Gears, grade 8: "and the privilege of seeing Bishop Sheen in person." Dorothy Zemaitis, grade 7: "Monday Morning Main Attraction... Win big awards! Mission Scenerama! Essay Contest Starts!"

Nazareth Publications Win 2 National Press Honors

Two Nazareth Academy publications received honors in the Catholic School Press Association survey and rating for the school year 1954-55 according to an announcement received this week from Dean J. O'Sullivan, director.

THE LANTHORN school year book edited by Virginia Burns, 1760 St. Paul Street; Sara Slavin, 105 Bellevue Drive; and Harriet Duffy, 25 Circle Crescent, was selected as a Book of Distinction. This honor is awarded a small percentage of the yearbooks receiving the All Catholic Award.

THE GABRIEL school newspaper, edited by Elizabeth Boyle, 26 Netherton Road, and Jean McGahan, 74 Woodlawn Street, was rated All Catholic in the newspaper division.

The Catholic School Press Association is sponsored by the School of Journalism, Marquette University. Its purpose is to assist student editors in maintaining high standards of journalism in their work of diffusing Catholic thought and promoting Catholic activities.

Three of last year's editors, Virginia Burns, Elizabeth Boyle and Jean McGahan are now attending Nazareth College. Sara Slavin is attending the University of Rochester and Harriet Duffy, the Rochester Institute of Technology.
