

Serious Plight Of Italy Refugees Told By Escapee Program Director

By ROBERT SMETT

Some of Europe's most brilliant minds and skilled hands are "rotting away" today in the political refugee camps of Italy, according to Miss Marlene DeMattia who returned to her Rochester home last week after a year's stay in Rome.

Miss DeMattia sailed for Italy in August of 1954 for a three-month vacation, "fell in love" with the country and decided to stay.

A GRADUATE of Nazareth Academy and Mercyhurst College, Miss DeMattia soon joined herself in full charge of N.C.W.C.'s division for Italy, which is sponsored by the U.S. government.

With headquarters in Rome, the program involves five field offices throughout Italy and is responsible for the welfare of 2000 families who have escaped from communist tyranny.

The escapees coming under her jurisdiction are political refugees, mostly from the satellite countries and Russia. Nearly all are imprisoned for anti-communist leanings and through death-defying escape make their way to the Italian border.

On reaching Italy, the escapees appeal to the United Nations

RETURNED HOME after a year in Italy, Miss Marlene DeMattia is shown above with Sister Sarah of the St. Mary's Hospital staff. Miss DeMattia was in charge of N.C.W.C.'s division of the U.S. Escapee Program in Italy, brought home because of illness, she is undergoing observation at St. Mary's

High Commissioner for political asylum. When proven genuine and while awaiting emigration, those refugees who are Catholic are turned over to the N.C.W.C. for aid. The Protestant and Jewish faiths have similar relief organizations, according to Miss DeMattia.

"Most people do not realize," Miss DeMattia stated, "that a great many of these people are highly trained doctors, professors, lawyers and diplomats, famous in their native lands. They are men and women who would be a credit to any nation who would offer them a home and help."

UNFORTUNATELY, she said, the immigration laws of the United States are very rigid, allowing entrance only to refugees who have immediate members of their family living in this country. One method of bringing these people into the country, however, is through the sponsorship of an employer, which Miss DeMattia says has met with wonderful results.

By this system an employer may contact the Escapee Program office in Rome, listing his requirements for a particular type professional or skilled worker. Through a system of pre-processing, the N.C.W.C. is able to send the employer a complete dossier of information on the individual, even to a photograph. Most of the refugees, especially those from Russia and Albania, come to the relief offices in pitiable stages of shock and exhaustion. Miss DeMattia said, with "hair-raising" stories of imprisonment and ill treatment.

BECAUSE OF illness Miss DeMattia was forced to give up her position and return home for rest. At present, she is undergoing examination at St. Mary's Hospital. She plans to return to work in the Escapee Program either in this country or Italy as soon as she is completely recovered.

Miss DeMattia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. DeMattia of Bryan St., and a niece of the Rev. Albert L. Simonetti, nunciatore, Rochester.

Waverly Rites Held For Elmira Priest's Father

Waverly — Solemn High Mass of Requiem was celebrated by the Rev. Joseph F. Hogan, pastor of St. James parish, Elmira, for his father, Frank Hogan, Saturday morning in St. James Church, Waverly.
