NOTRE DAME HIGH SCHOOL

EGO SUM LUX MUNDI

"I am the Light of the World"

... so reads the official seal of Notre Dame High School, Elmira, as an inspiration to its students that from Him comes all things in knowledge and understanding.

The Latin phrase is superimposed upon a background of blue, white and gold. The left field of the shield contains the Mercy cross with shepherd's crook to signify guidance.

The upper right field has the lamp of wisdom and learning. The lower right field shows Our Lady's Crown and the initial "M" for Mary.

This Marian monogram, which is also found on the episcopal coat of arms of His Excellency, Bishop Kearney, pays tribute to the fact that Notre Dame High School was launched and dedicated under his sponsorship. The monogram also honors the Blessed Mother in whose Marian Year (1954) the school was designed. Over the whole seal design breathes the symbol of the Holy Spirit.
