1100 Diocesan Teachers In Conference

"we must help children to recognize God as the Source of all law."

Every phase of the curriculum is important for us Sister Jamesetta said, not only for what it does on behalf of the school but for what it does for eternity. Therefore, nothing human is unrelated to the goal.

"Our children must know that it is not enough to be ordinary Catholics in these extraordinary times," she stated. "our teachers must know that they must see two worlds at once and then prepare their student for full Christian lives in both."

Throughout the two-day conference, sixty-six national and local manufacturers have exhibits of their products on display in the Aquinas gymnasium and main hall for viewing during lecture recesses.

Today's speakers include the Very Rev. John F. Murphy, C.S.B., Ph.D., president of Rochester's St. John Fisher College for men. Father Murphy's talk is entitled "Better Images of God." The Rev. Dr. Joseph L. Hogan, professor at St. Bernard Seminary will speak on "Growing Pains," and the Rev. Albert J. Shamon of St. Andrew Seminary faculty will talk on "The Qualities of a Good Teacher."

At the closing Benediction, Bishop Kearney will be assisted by the Rev. Charles V. Boyle, superintendent of schools, as deacon, and the Very Rev. Ernest P. Magee, C.S.B., principal of Aquinas Institute, as subdeacon.

The mammoth card party to be held for the Discalced Carmelite Sisters in Rochester on Thursday, Oct. 13 at 8 p.m. in Columbus Civic Center will have special significance for the Carmelites.

The Sisters have been serving 25 years in Rochester.

On June 19, 1930 at the request of His Excellency, Bishop John Francis O'Hern, the late Mother Beatrix brought a small group of nuns to establish the Carmelite foundation in Rochester. She had entered the order in Baltimore in 1868, founded the Carmel in Boston in 1890 and was instrumental in establishing the Philadelphia Carmel. She died in Rochester in 1939 at the age of 93, having spent 70 years in her chosen community.

The Discalced Carmelite Sisters were the first religious community in the original 13 colonies founded in 1750 at Charles County, Port Tobacco, Md. At present there are about 50 Carmel convents throughout the country.

Here in Rochester, the Sisters rely upon alms, their own handiwork, such as the making of vestments, church articles and other such work. Booths displaying these articles will be found in the rear of the auditorium, the night of the card fete.

His Excellency Bishop Kearney, is honorary chairman of the card party. General chairman is Mrs. Orr M. Sixby, assisted by Mrs. Fred Hery and Mrs. Arthur Reeves.

The Patient's Doing Fine
The "patient" in this case is one of the Rochester Gas and Electric's 138,000 gas meters. The "doctor" performing the examination is Augustus E. Farese, Supervisor of the RG&E's Gas Meter Shop. He and his staff of 20 men completely overhaul and thoroughly test each gas meter before it leaves the shop to make sure that it is in perfect operating condition. If the meter does not measure up to the highest standards of accuracy, it is sent back to "surgery" for further repairs. After it has been okayed by RG&E's meter department, it is subject to inspection by the New York State Public Service Commission. Careful testing of gas and electric meters is one more job RG&E employes do to assure you of the very best electric and gas service at the very lowest possible cost.
