CCM: Projects contains program sugrestions for activities of the ight NCCM standing commites, which are the civic and social action, communications, famlife, legislation, organization

id development, public relaons, religious activities and outh committees. "Projects answers a long-stand ng request from Catholic men of the nation for a regular program service, which would enable them to build their own program libraries." Martin H. Work, NCCM executive director, said "Projects is not a book for the desk or library shelf, but rather a set of eight work-sheets for committees in parish organizations of men."

Phil Finn, NCCM program director, is the editor of Projects, which will be published every two months, it was announced Special features include a particular color to identify the program of each committee, - a standard eight-and-a half by eleven inch page to facilitate filing, and a simple stapled binding for easy disassembly and distrioution to committee chairmen.

Baptists Approve 'Watch-Dog' For Parochial Schools

Little Rock, Ark.- (RNS) The Arkansas Baptist Convention, at its annual meeting here, voted to create a special committee "to determine and divulge where tax money is used" for maintenance or support of sequence parochial schools in the state.

The action was on a motion by the Rev. John Dodge. Hot Springs: It complemented earlier approval by the delegates of an executive board recommendation that Convention-affiliated Baptists do the following: .

"Ask our state and national covernments to prohibit any public tax money from being used to operate or to assist in the op- A.
