Mount Saviour Prior Schedules Elmira Talk

Second of a series of talks to the St. Scholastica League and the Catholic Daughters of America in Elmira, during the Lenten season, will be given by the Very Rev. Damasus Winzen, prior of Mount Saviour monastery on Sunday, March 4 at 7 p.m.

The talks will be at the rooms of the Catholic Daughters of America, State and Church Streets in Elmira.

IN THE FIRST talk, Father Damasus discussed the need for mortification as a means of personal spiritual progress during Lent. However, mere fasting and abstinence without the accompaniment of prayer would be little better than an act of physical stamina, he explained.

In like manner, almsgiving without the awareness that Christ lives in our fellowmen frequently borders on pride. Since man lives on both the natural and spiritual levels, it is therefore vital that he employ his natural acts for a supernatural purpose. In this way, he assumes his proper relationship as a son of God, a brother to his neighbor and a master of the material world.

Members of the St. Scholastica League and Catholic Daughters of America are urged to attend the talks.

Youth Panel Discusses Viewpoints In Corning

Corning—Four young persons discussed in panel fashion subjects of interest to young people and how they relate to adults before about 75 members of St. Patrick Parish at a gathering last week. Edward Schneider acted as moderator.

Following an introductory talk by the Rev. Gerald Dunn, the following panel members were introduced: Michael Reardon, Patty Bierwiler, Barbara Lanahan and James Riesbeck.

The panel discussed and informed the audience of parents and teachers, of their opinions on their different age levels of, television, radio, record playing, homework schedules, allowances, chaperones, privacy and home entertaining, enforced hours for dating and retiring.

THE SUMMATION pointed out that youth are receptive to guidance but want to be on their level and not from an adult viewpoint; that the home is the center of all habits and the parents respected and obeyed, especially if the rights and conveniences of the young people are respected by the parents.

As the result of the meeting it was brought to the attention of adults that there is no opportunity for young adults to stop for proper refreshments following a sports event or a dance. It was pointed out that parents should alert themselves to this particular need regardless of inconvenience to themselves.

FATHER DUNN closed the meeting with a prayer and the expressed hope that the meeting would serve as a beginning for parents, teachers and home life to be drawn closer together with the help of the Holy Family.

Following the talk Sisters of St. Patrick Convent met with the parents, and panel members answered questions.
