Hornell Doctor Describes Salk Vaccine Program

Hornell—Dr. John McRoberts, guest speaker at St. Ann's Mothers Club meeting on Tuesday discussed Polio and the Salk Vaccine program.

The speaker described poliomyelitis as a virus disease centered in the central nervous system. The disease, he said, is picked up by hands and transferred to the mouth, thence entering the blood stream. The stage of development takes three to 35 days, usually two weeks.

Polio is characterized as one of our clinical types - not paralytic, abortive, mild paralytic and severe paralytic. Since the mild paralytic is the type usually manifested and seldom recognized, Dr. McRoberts gave a general description of this phase.

THERE IS generalized aching, possible stiffness of neck muscles and weakness of arms and legs. In advanced cases there are spasms in muscles. In this way, the virus attacks the spinal cord and can travel to all muscles of the body.

In describing the treatment of the mild paralytic patient, the speaker said in many cases the patient is put to bed and treatment can be carried on at home.

Paralytic patients of course are transferred to the hospital. A spinal tap is sometimes but not necessarily taken. This process shows the doctor the cell formation and number of cells. It is not essentially painful but is distressing to parents.

The use of packs is still regarded as best treatment and they are used to ease the pain and relax the muscles. The isolation period for such patients is usually one week or until the temperature again reaches normal.

Once the muscle spasm is over, the real task is begun to repair muscle damage through physical therapy. Massage of muscles is begun and gradually the patient begins exercising those damaged muscles.

DR. McROBERTS expressed great optimism for combatting polio. He said this optimism of the medical profession is due largely to the work of Dr. Jonas Salk. Dr. Salk perfected, with the help of many scientists and doctors, he said, the serum to inoculate people against polio. He stressed that the use of Salk vaccine is safe not one case of polio could be traced to the use of the vaccine since June 1955.

The speaker said "we have been fortunate in our area to have received sufficient vaccine and more will be given if people can be convinced of its effectiveness."

The Salk Vaccine Program is well started Dr. McRoberts described it as only the beginning of a new era of hope for the combatting of polio.

A business session following the talk was conducted by Mrs. Humbert Solo who thanked Mrs. Raymond Moretti and Mrs. George Hussong and their committee for success of the Book Tea.

Members voted $25 to the Station Wagon Fund. Mrs. Solo asked members to volunteer for kindergarten registration, April 23 and 24. A nominating committee presented a slate of officers to be voted on at the next regular meeting.
