Director Robbed — No Publicity Stunt

Winooski Park — (NC) — It may sound like the hackneyed stolen jewels publicity stunt but it has left Bill Schulte in a tough spot.

Mr. Shulte is directing the Players, Inc., alumni group of Catholic University of America's speech and drama department, in a presentation of "Dial 'M' For Murder," scheduled to open here at St. Michael's College Playhouse on July 17.

Some days ago while he was in New York, a thief broke into the Players' station wagon. All that was taken was Mr. Schulte's bag. It contained the director's marked copy of "Dial 'M' For Murder" and an original play which Mr. Schulte had written toward a master's degree at the Catholic University.

Title of Mr. Schulte's play is "Shoulder The Sky" and his burden now looks as large as the title suggests, since he will have to rewrite his play from memory.

Insight Into Convent Life Revealed In Shaw Letters

Boston — (NC) — The close friendship between dramatist George Bernard Shaw and a cloistered Benedictine nun was shown in correspondence published here for the first time.

The nun was Abbess Laurentia McLachlan of Stanbrook Abbey, Worcestershire, England, who died in 1953, three years after the death of Shaw. The letters betwen the nun and the playwright, edited by the Sisters at the Abbey, appear in the July issue of The Atlantic, monthly magazine published here. The correspondence, which was carried on over a period of 26 years, will form part of a book, "In a Great Tradition."

G. B. SHAW

THE LETTERS from Shaw to the Abbess, usually signed "Brother Bernard," reveal a little known side of Shaw. The Sisters who edited the letters said Shaw showed himself "surprisingly alive to the implications of the contemplative life and to the freedom paradoxically symbolized by the double iron grille."

"When we are next touring your neighborhood," Shaw once wrote the Abbess, "I shall again shake your bars and look longingly at the freedom on the other side of them."

A friend of Shaw's Sydney Cockerell, who accompanied the writer on one of his numerous visits to the convent, said he saw on that occasion a G.B.S. almost unknown.

"I never saw him so abashed by anyone but William Morris," he remarked years later to a member of the community. "With Morris and your dear Abbess he was on his good behavior, and seemed to admit that he was in the presence of a being superior to himself."

AT THE END of one long letter to Sister Laurentia, Shaw said: "I . . . find great solace in writing to you instead of to all the worldly people whose letters are howling to be answered."

The supposedly agnostic Shaw once sent Dame Laurentia a little stone from Bethlehem which, he said, "certainly existed when the feet of Jesus pattered about on it and the feet of Mary pursued him to kep him in order." When the Sister, in thanking him, suggested that he write an inscription for the reliquary containing the stone, G.B.S. replied: "Why, can it not be a secret between us and Our Lady and her little boy?"

"The Mission Trail of California" 600 miles along the Pacific visiting the old California Missions from San Juan Capistrano to Santa Barbora, a journey of reverence and beauty to every Catholic, is only one of the many features of the years Western Circle Tour.

Catholic Theatre Bills Eliot Play

"Murder in the Cathedral," a two-act play in verse by T. S. Eliot, will be presented by the Catholic Theatre of Rochester on Thursday and Friday, July 19 and 20 at 8:30 p.m. out-of-doors on the Nazareth College campus.

WILFORD SCOTT

Admission is open to the general public and contributions are voluntary.

Under the direction of Wilford Scott, the play was presented last March at the Alfred University Drama Festival and is now open to the public for the first time.

CAST INCLUDES Ronald Pedrone, Chester Demske, Richard Herr, Mary Mikell Clark, Jack Burton, Joy Burns Pedrone, Marianne Schlagenhauf and Richard Atwood.

'Murder in the Cathedral" is based on a true account of the last episode in the life of St. Thomas Becket. It presents the story of the Archbishop of Canterbury's conflict with King Henry, unfolding the personality of the famed martyr and disclosing much of the color and character of the times.
