

Industrialist Scores Racial Bias In Jobs

Indianapolis—(NC)—Racial discrimination in hiring employees constitutes a serious threat to American business, an industrial executive told a Catholic Interracial Council luncheon here.

"It is no longer possible to separate economic considerations from those which are social or political," said Joseph J. Morrow, personnel director of Pitney-Bowes Inc., Stamford, Conn.

"THE THREATS of the Negro problem, as you can read in the papers, are both internal and external," he said. "We are short-sighted if we fail to see this. The discrepancy between our preachings of equality of opportunity and our actual practice of discrimination toward Negro citizens weakens our moral fiber here at home and makes us particularly vulnerable to the attacks of our enemies overseas who are engaged with us in a battle of ideologies."

"Our businesses have much at stake in the outcome of this battle, and they must do their part in upholding the decent and fair principles which are the cornerstone of our freedom."

"There are many ways in which industry can and should take its share of moral leadership in our communities, but one of the best is to employ those who come to its doors fairly and objectively, and on the basis of qualifications rather than color."

MR. MORROW predicted that improving the Negro's economic lot would bring general social gains in the reduction of crime, disease, poverty and waste of human ability and talent.

Mr. Morrow, a leading Connecticut Catholic layman, put aside the material or social gains to be realized from providing equal economic opportunity for Negroes.

Pope Urges Moral Norms On Economists

Castel Gandolfo, Italy—(RNS)—Pope Pius XII told a group of economists from various countries they should interpret economic facts from the moral as well as material viewpoint.

The economists were received by the Pope in an audience at the papal summer residence here after attending the first congress of the International Association of Economists held in Rome.

"IT IS NECESSARY," the Pontiff said, "not to consider economic facts solely as a physical and chemical phenomenon subject to the determinism of natural laws, thus overlooking what is essential, namely, the relations between individuals and those that link the individual to society."

Pope Pius said both the individual and society are bound by rules, "not at all material, but moral," that govern the use of material possessions.

He observed that "Marxism pretends to consider the human being only as an economic agent and to make the structure of human society depend only on production. The Pope said this means ignoring the fact that the economic problem calls not only for supplying man's physical needs but also preserving his status as a moral and social individual truly free in his activity."

THERE ARE many human or economic problems, the Pontiff said, which cannot be solved without attempting to understand and sympathize with human and personal needs.

"Man can never make a separation between the temporal goals he pursues and the final goal of his existence," he declared.
