Home Improvement Program
Outlined By Plumbing Firm

This is Home Improvement Year, proclaimed by Housing Administrator Cole in keeping with a suggestion by President Eisenhower.

The President stated that America needs a program to improve the existing housing supply and to prevent the creation of new slums. Home improvement is extremely important to our National economy.

In keeping with the National Improvement program, Richard L. Weider of Lawrence A. Weider & Son, Inc., local plumbing and heating contractors, points out that making improvements in our home regularly is just good common sense. Modernization projects our investment in our property and pays dividends 5 ways—in health, 2nd in economy, 3rd, efficiency, 4th comfort and most important 5th, greater property value.

Of approximately 65,000 homes in Rochester, about 56,000 of them are 30 years old or older, of which approximately 42,000 are over 50 years old.

Of approximately 50 million homes now in the country, about half of them, or 25 million, are 30 years old or older. Another 10 million homes are 50 years old, and one-fourth of these homes have no bath tubs or showers; one out of every seven have no running water and 1% have no kitchen sink; about 8 million homes have obsolete or no heating equipment whatsoever.

Mr. Weider states that although our fine city is progressive, industrious and energetic, don't say it can't happen here—it is happening. Sure we're luckier than other parts of the country, but we still have a lot of old homes right here in our city.

Improving older homes is one of our best methods of preventing slums and blight conditions. It means maintaining and increasing property values. It means preserving the charm of old neighborhoods.

Home improvements takes many forms. It consists of repainting and redecorating your home. It means putting up a new fence around your yard, planting flowers, repairing a leaky roof, buying new furniture or rugs, hanging wallpaper, putting in a new kitchen or laundry room.

Or, it means modernizing that most important room in the house—the bathroom. Today, modern homes offer the comforts of spacious, colorful bathrooms with streamlined fixtures, waterproof tile, and sanitary plumbing.

Often, homeowners put off major home improvements such as a new heating system, or a remodeled bath because of lack of ready cash. Or, because it means scouting for bids, materials, plans, and arranging financing.

Today, those problems can be taken off the homeowner's hands. All the customer need do now is to contact his local plumbing and heating contractor for any and all arrangements.

The local plumbing and heating contractor is equipped to handle the whole job. For example, "Packaged Bathrooms" are now available at leading plumbers and they are equipped to help the homeowner with plans, estimates, selection of materials and even the financing.

Several methods of financing are available. Often, the money for a home improvement program is as near as the telephone. Usually, it's just a matter of contacting a local bank or lending institution.

And what's more, the remodeling job can be paid for on easy
