Leaders Search For Control To End Hydrogen Blasts

POPE PIUS XII obligation in conscience

There can be no doubt about it — the world's leaders fear the threat of H-bomb warfare. They even fear the mere testing of this terrifying super-weapon.

Pope Pius XII in his Christmas message a year ago said it is "an obligation in conscience for the people and statesmen of the world" to cease experimenting with nuclear

Over a year ago President Eisenhower urged an "openskies" inspection program to control world armaments and insisted that "essential safeguards" be developed so no nation could attain an atomic advantage. . . .

Even before his nomination, presidential candidate Adlai

Stevenson last April suggested "earnest consideration to stopping further tests of the hydrogen bomb. Premier Bulganin of Soviet Russia has recently injected his bid for an atomic sabbath. And this week as the United Nations debated possible methods of atomic control, Notre Dame's Father Theodore Hesburgh, acting as the Vatican's representative, described the H-bomb as a "power of world-wide destruction." Also this week an English priest-meteorologist, Father William Connick, declared that continued testing of atomic bombs is upsetting the world's weather and that future generations will be born "into a new, strange and hostile; climate. We must admit that crepe-hangers have always alleged that the latest invention is ruining the weather — even if we did have a beautiful autumn. Back when the Wright brothers launched their first plane, some people said it would destroy the seasons. Dynamite, demons, and skyscrapers have had their turn being blamed for rain when a man wanted to go on a picnic or for sun when he wanted his crops. irrigated.

We must also admit that when science first triggered an atom bomb it ushered us into a new era "for better or for worse" and perhaps "unto death."

Scientists tell us that radio-active atrontium from thermonuclear explosions can poison the atmosphere and the people of the world to the point that future generations are genetically spoiled.

So even if our diplomats can defer war indefinitely, we might all be affected by strontium saturation from an increasing number of super-bomb tests. Einewetok, Australia, Alcoholic Signposts and Siberis seem far enough away but the drift and fall-out Alcoholic Signposts from atom detonations in those distant spots can be detected promptly in America.

Over a year ago, nine eminent scientists, seven of them Nobel prize winners, including Albert Einstein who first urred President Roosevelt to launch the atom bomb development, emphasized that radio-activity from nuclear blasts could mean "a slow torture of disease and disintegration" and perhaps finally "universal death."

Why is it then that everybody from the Pope at Rome to the Premier in Moscow wants an end of atom blasts but nobody can agree as to how to stop the death knell of the human race?

All the leaders pictured to the left have in effect said the same thing — "Stop H-bomb blasts!"

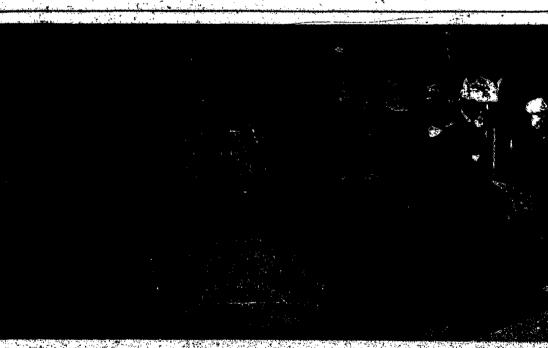

The reason that they aren't heeded is that the world agrees with their idea but disagrees with heir reasons.

The Pope wants peace and nobody in the democratic Metern mations questions his motives. And Bulganin says he wants peace - and nobody in the communist orbit dares question his motives - but his peace bid is assumed to be beginning the "skid" to do some an excuse for building up Soviet military power and absorb- clear-headed thinking and some ing more and more satellite nations.

Democrats and Republicans in America mutually allege that Adlai and Ike are using the peace promises for political . advantage.

No matter who wins in November, the United States president faces a crucial problem in his control of future self control and the alcoholic atomic experimentation. If we stow our atoms in an attic and complacently hope for peace, we will be quickly conquered by Soviet advances. If we continue to detonate progressively more powerful bombs, we endanger our own nation indicate that a person is on the and the world itself.

Necessity demands careful decisions — and soon!
