American Education Week Features Assembly, Open House At Nazareth

"Good Catholic Schools for a Strong America," theme for American Education Week, will be featured in an assembly program in the auditorium at Nazareth Academy on Lake Ave. Thursday, Nov. 15 at 1:30 p.m.

Other American Education events include: Voice of Democracy Contest, Monday; Sisters of St. Joseph Teachers' Institute, Tuesday; Parent-Teacher Association meeting, Wednesday; and open house, Friday.

City officials and school administrators have been invited, according to Sister Agnes Cecilia, principal. Students representing clubs and other organizations will explain their part in the threefold development of powers: spiritual, intellectual, and physical.

GROUP LEADERS are Grace Corcoran, narrator, representing the Student Council; Marcia Young, Sobalby; Diane Christian, Missions; Barbara Brunner, National Honor Society; Monica McAlpine, Meridian Club; Paula Burke, Gabriel; Marie Chechak, Science Club; Sharon Douthett, Sorority; and Nancy Koch, Junior Red Cross.

Faculty in charge of Education Week events are Sister Observation proposes to show that the school program as evidenced in Catholic secondary schools is in accord with the teaching of the Holy Father in that all its instruction, organization, syllabi and textbooks are regulated by the Christian spirit, under the supervision of the Church.

Faculty Coffee Hour Highlights Education Week

A faculty coffee hour, scheduled for Nov. 14, will highlight Our Lady of Mercy High School's observance of American Education Week, Nov. 11-17. The faculty coffee hour to which public and parochial secondary school principals have been invited carries out the request of Rochester Superintendent of Catholic Schools, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Charles Boyle, for active participation of Catholic schools in the week.

In conjunction with American Education Week, officially declared by the Commissioner of Education, Catholic educators have adopted the motto "Good Catholic Schools for a Strong America." Corresponding Catholic ideals taken from the writings of Bishop Spalding, noted leader in Catholic education, match daily national topics. Among the Catholic ideals are: Nov. 13 — Schools for a Sound Faith, and Nov. 16 — The Ideal Teacher.

St. Agnes Slates Open House For Education Week

Plans for the observance of American Education Week announced today by Sister Rose Alma, principal, include an Open House program that will attract a large number of visitors to the recently constructed school on East River Rd.

Open-house is set for Thursday, Nov. 15, from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Guests will have opportunity to attend classes of the various departments demonstrating the total school program, and student-conducted tours will end with a coffee hour in the school cafeteria.

THE OBSERVANCE will be emphasized by a student assembly, at which time all school organizations will renew their consecration to the service of Christ, the King.

This annual consecration has become a tradition at Saint Agnes High School.

Student Committee Chairmen, under the leadership of Judith LeBeau, president of student council, include Sharon Humbert, Kathleen Sheehan, Jean Marie DaMore, Anne Marie Miller, Jo Ann Piro, Carolyn Tette, Jean Trainor, Gail Maloney, Anne Minion, Marie Flinks, Patricia Sullivan, and Sandra Masters.

November is an interesting month in that it is so many things to so many people. In this month Veterans Day is commemorated. Book Week and National Education Week are observed, along with countless lesser weeks scheduled by publicity-minded industries.

It appears to be the season when nature is most unlovely, unless one has an aesthetic appreciation of shirk angular branches against leaden skies. In our climate the snow does not fall in quantity but just enough to add to the feeling of dreariness, dampness and despair.

TO A CATHOLIC, however, November has a special meaning. So often we forget the debts of justice and gratitude we owe to the dead. In not praying for our dead we are neglecting our just responsibilities and also depriving ourselves of a marvelous source of help, because in the Communion of Saints, the Holy Dead play a vital part.

Among the million dead are those whom our Church has singled out for the special honors of beatification and sometimes canonization.

One of these honored dead is Blessed Martin de Porres, the colored lay brother, who has so many things to teach our modern world, whose personality has facets that give him an amazing universal appeal. Blessed Martin demonstrates most cogently that love of God and the resulting goodness, humility, and sincere love of one's fellow men at

Education Week Highlighted In Nazareth College Program

Nazareth College is inviting the public to share in its observance of American Education Week this year, according to Sister Rose Angela, Dean. The college has scheduled a varied program designed to interpret American higher education to various groups in the community, including parents, prospective students, the general public, as well as to college students and the alumnae.

Beginning with the investiture of the Freshmen in cap and gown by His Excellency Bishop Kearney, to which parents of the new students were invited, the program will continue through a two-week period this year.

THIS WEEK, Dr. Richard Pattee, world traveler and lecturer on international affairs, will be at the college to talk to students and faculty on world problems. Alumnae and friends of the college are invited to hear Dr. Pattee.

On Sunday morning, Nov. 11 at 9:30 resident students will sing a High Mass in the Motherhouse Chapel, which will be offered in thanksgiving for freedom of education in America. Sunday evening, the Nazareth College Glee Club will entertain the Glee Club of St. John Fisher College in the Social Room.

During the week of Nov. 11 to 17 regular classes will be open to visitors and all citizens of Rochester and the surrounding area are cordially invited to observe the program of humanities and the sciences which form the basis of the liberal education offered at Nazareth.

AT THE ALUMNAE Board meeting scheduled at the college on Monday evening, November 12, plans for development of the college will be outlined to the alumnae leaders.

Speaker at the Student Hour on Nov. 15 will be the Rev. Mother M. Helene, president of Nazareth College, whose topic will be "The State of the Catholic College in American Education."

These student hours are conducted by the Undergraduate Association each Thursday at the 2:10 p. m.

Nazareth College students will act as hostesses to students from the men's colleges in this area at an informal social evening in the college auditorium on Friday evening, Nov. 16.

On the weekend Nazareth College will host the National Federation of Catholic College Students regional meeting, at which the president of the region, Julian Wright, student at Niagara University, will preside.

DURING AMERICAN Education Week faculty and alumnae will visit a number of high schools in central and western New York to acquaint students with the opportunities offered at Nazareth College and to interpret the place of the Catholic woman's college in the total American education picture.

Sister Eva Marie, Director of Development, and Sister Josephine Louise, Registrar, will participate in a college meeting at Notre Dame High School in Batavia on Sunday, Nov. 11. Sister Rose Angela, Dean and Sister Mary Francis, professor of Music are planning a visit to the new

GOD LOVE YOU!

By MOST REV. FULTON J. SHEEN

A FAMOUS English aviation ace of the last war, Captain Leonard Cheshire witnessed the destruction brought about by the atomic bomb in Nagasaki, Japan. Returning to England he was gripped to learn that a hospital had dismissed one of his war companions as incurable. No nursing home would take him in.

But Captain Cheshire accepted him as a guest. As Our Lord said, He is disgraced in the sick and the lame and the blind, this act of sacrifice merited the Captain the gift of faith. From that time on he has devoted himself to the care of incurables. He has established ten such homes in England and three in India with two under construction. To make his homes family affairs he has the sick take part in the administration. He now has requests for homes in other mission lands such as Malaya, Burma and Thailand.

This heroic life reminds one of a Catholic in France. He was unable to receive the Sacraments because there was no priest nearby to assist him in his last agony. So he called in the poor and distributed alms to them that he might see Christ in them.

Prayers are not always enough to obtain certain favors such as conversions. The Captain received his through sacrifices. Other favors too need the faith which sees Christ in the unbeliever, the leper, the incurable, the blind. What opportunities we give you to help Christ in these unfortunates through this column. Make a daily sacrifice and at the end of the month send it to the Holy Father for the poor of the world through his own Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

GOD LOVE YOU to Mrs. O.B.O. "Enclosed is a check for $5 from my mission conversion box. Every time I wish for the conversion of my daughter-in-law I drop whatever coins I have in the box." ... to C.N. "In thanks for all I have and to fulfill my love of children here is $2." ... to J.L. for $1. "Just a small contribution from a hospital confined veteran who has no use for money." ... to J.F. Jr. "The five dollar represents entertainment which my wife and I will gladly deny ourselves." ... to C.W.H. for $90 for the poor of the world. ... to Mrs. J.W.N. For pounds of pennies which amounted to $10. ... to M.C. "Here is $5 — the price of a new hat." ... to G.G. "Enclosed is $5, given in thanksgiving for the prevention of a fire." ... to A.M.P. "Here is a check for $3 — the cost of a hat. I'm trying the 'do-it-yourself' plan instead." ... to Mr. and Mrs. F.J.M. for $2 "for all the happiness we found together in our married life." ... to M.B.M. "We like hot dogs better than steak, anyway! At least this Saturday we do."
