Life Of Benedictine Told At Holy Name Breakfast

Corning — The life, work and accomplishments of a Benedictine monk were explained at the Communion breakfast of the St. Vincent de Paul's Holy Name Society attended by about 60 men of the parish last Sunday morning.

Guest speaker was the Rev. Damasus Winzen, O.S.B., prior of the Benedictine Monastery of Mount Saviour, Elmira, who was introduced by Edward Darangelo, who took office at the affair as new president. Ferdinand W. Bobrick, retiring president, conducted the morning program.

TAKING OFFICE with Darangelo, were vice president, Philip Dellisante, secretary, Frank Dolbert, and treasurer, Charles Nitsche.

Father Winzen told of instances in his life that led him to become a monk. He also answered questions of interest to Catholic laymen regarding the life of the Benedictine monk, who, he explained, lives a life of prayer and work. He asked that as members of Holy Name societies, his listeners should follow the teachings of Christ in their every day living.

Father Damasus, a native of Hanover, Germany, studied in Munich and Rome. He holds a doctor's degree in philosophy from St. Anselmo, the Benedictine College in Rome.

In 1938, Father Damasus came to this country and served as a teacher in the seminary of the Archdiocese of Newark. Three years later, Father Damasus joined the staff of Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart as professor of religion. In 1947, he founded a community of contemplative Benedictine Nuns in Darlington, Conn. He served there as chaplain until 1951 when he came to this area to establish the Benedictine Monastery at Mount Saviour.

College Library Roof Installation Beats Snowfall

Workmen on Nazareth College Library building have won the race against winter weather and snow. Finishing touches on the roof over the new building were completed last week, pans have been put in the leaded windows, the final intricate work on the tower has been done by skilled mechanics, and the entire building crew is ready now to proceed with the interior of the imposing structure which will house the college library.

ST. JOSEPH the Worker seems to have had this project under his special protection, according to the Sisters. Andy Tufano, the building superintendent stated that only seven days have been lost on account of the weather—a remarkable record in construction statistics in Rochester.

Faculty, students and friends—clergy and laymen—have shown a live interest in the progress of the work, since ground was broken on April 18. The Sisters report practically every evening several visitors drive through the grounds to see what has been done since their last visit.

Students and faculty make a walk around the building a daily habit, to view the magnificent entrance, or the frame which will hold the lovely stained glass window at the south end of the reading room, or the two floors of stacks, or the carpets at the west windows.

Most encouraging to the Sisters of St. Joseph has been the tangible evidence of interest on the part of the public as shown by the unsolicited gifts, ranging from a few dollars to a block of securities worth well over a thousand dollars. Many items in the new building could serve as splendid memorials to deceased students, faculty, or alumnae, or other friends of the college. Inquiries about such memorials will be welcomed by the Sisters.

Nazareth College Seniors Practice Working In Fields Of Their Training

Forty-four Nazareth College seniors will get a taste of the professional work for which they are preparing beginning this week. Thirty-three prospective teachers in various subject matter fields began their cadet teaching experience in Rochester and area schools this week. They will continue to teach until the Christmas vacation under the supervision of master teachers in the public schools.

Jeanine Clark of Penn Yan, and Agnes Kellner, Caledonia, will teach at Benjamin Franklin High School; Dorothy Crombach and Beverly Murphy will be at East High School; Marian Waters, Seneca Falls, will teach at Jefferson High School; Barbara Foss and Elaine Griffin, Wayland, will teach at John Marash all High School; Anissa Kocyk and Patricia Wurtz, Boston, will be at Madison High School; Barbara Brownyard, Kent, Ohio, Maureen McLaughlin, Auburn, Helen Schanz and Eleanor Tyn dall, Flushing, will teach at Monroe High School; Mary Gelson and Dolores Piehler will be at West High School.

THE FOLLOWING seniors will be at area high schools: Anne Buettner and Margaret FitzGibbon at Brighton High School; Mary Ann Neodemi, at East Rochester High School; Margaret Galavotti, Canastota, and Sena Monaghan, Canastota, at Fairport High School; Suzanne Andrus, Mary Ann Barletta, Theresa Finks, Barbara Kowalik and Katherine Mowson will teach at Irondequoit High School; Dorothy Fletcher, Trumburg, Kathleen Hiney, Corning, and Judith Keaveny, Fitchburg, Mass., will be at Pittsford Central School. Theresa Deliberti, will teach in the elementary grades at Our Lady of Lourdes School; Mary Ann Handian and Joan Stasko, Geneva, Mary Collins, Newark, and Lorraine Kubasewitz are teaching Tuesday and Thursday mornings in the elementary schools of Rochester.

The seven music majors in the Class of 1957 will begin their block of practice teaching in February, at the beginning of the second semester.

BEGINNING THEIR field work this week also, eleven sociology majors will spend the next three weeks in various social work agencies. Thelma Carroll is planning her field work at Rochester State Hospital; Mary Curran, Mary Gagliano and Diane Widmer will be the Monroe County Department of Social Welfare, Child Placement Division; Bernice Gianforti and Barbara Wegman will work at the Catholic Family Center in Rochester; Rosemary Lyons at the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children; Liliana Leonard, Fulton, and Sharon Riley, Truxton, at the Juvenile Court in Rochester; Helen Sutto, Watkins Glen, will work at the Catholic Family Service in Elmira and Mary Grace Lodico, Elmira, will accompany Miss Warda Potacki, Home Teacher, in her field work in Rochester.

Each Tuesday during their senior year, the sociology seniors also take observation trips to local and out-of-town institutions, where the directors of the institutions explain their aims and functions.

This field work program is in line with the policy advocated at Nazareth College to provide all students with some practical experience in their chosen vocational field. Business and science students are encouraged and as-

THE FAMILY SETS THE COST

Our basic charge for professional service is the same for all—based on our actual costs. Any difference in the total funeral bill depends upon the merchandise selected—and in this the family alone makes the decision. We have a large stock available to meet the varying tastes and economic situations of those we serve. In such matters we feel that we have an advisory capacity only and we suggest to all that ostentation be avoided. The only safe rule is that the final tribute should be in keeping with family status—to avoid any criticism from friends. In all cases YOU make the choice.
