

Protestant Groups Oppose Toronto Sunday Paper

Toronto, Ont. — (RNS)—Plans of the Toronto Telegram to publish a Sunday edition beginning March 17 were denounced by the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada (Protestant) at its annual meeting here.

The board served warning that if the Telegram goes ahead with the plans it will ask the attorney general of Ontario province to prosecute under the Lord's Day Act of Canada, anyone who sells the paper.

UNITED CHURCH ministers and members were urged by the board to uphold the act by refusing to buy the Sunday Telegram if and when it appears on the streets.

The board described the Telegram's plans as "flouting the Lord's Day Act." It said the proposed Sunday paper would be "trucked and otherwise delivered" to the newsstands, hotel lobbies, railway and bus terminals, drugstores and other outlets in Ontario.

"It will be delivered on the Lord's Day," the churchmen added, "to subscribers in houses, apartments and dwellings by hundreds of young children, including girls of tender years, in violation of the Lord's Day Act."

The board adopted the resolution after Dr. James R. Mutchmor, its secretary, had declared: "Now is the time to act to preserve the Lord's Day. The Sunday paper would be one more means of whittling away the basic structure of the Lord's Day in Canada—one more step toward making our life entirely secular."

OPPOSITION to Sunday news papers also was expressed by the Canadian Baptist official publication of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec and the Baptist Union of Western Canada.

Declaring that those in Toronto who sought to publish a Sunday paper were "a menace to our national well-being," it said the only reason a newspaper wants to publish on seven days instead of six "is that it may add to its profits another day's take."

Violators would be subject to fines up to $100 and/or 30 days in jail.

Canadian Church Opposes Big Cars

Toronto, Ont. — (RNS)—The United Church of Canada's board of evangelism and social service passed a resolution at its annual meeting here "suggesting respectfully" to the automobile industry that big cars are wasteful.

The fact that some of the ministers present admitted a personal preference for big, roomy cars, didn't hold up passage of the resolution.

The board said the production of bigger, more powerful and heavier costlier motor vehicles is a factor in inflation and therefore not in the public interest.

Dr. James R. Mutchmor, secretary of the board said he had heard complaints from all sides that people couldn't get the new cars into their garages.

Pope Raps Lust In Entertainment Field

are "bringing into the intimacy of homes, as we have been told, dirty scenes that are apt to disturb the consciences of on-lookers."

Pope Pius warned that if constitutional laws to immoral practices and shows prove ineffective, "it will be necessary for Rome's Catholics themselves to defend the rights of religion and decency," acting in collaboration with "other individuals who are concerned for public morality."

"NOW IS THE time," he said, to wake public opinion to energetic reaction, thus showing what is really the true moral feeling and forcing the competent authorities to take appropriate necessary measures. This is the task we entrust to you, Lenten preachers, certain that you will merit the gratitude of all who care for the true welfare of the Roman people."

The Pope also spoke out forcefully against laxity among many of Rome's Catholics some of whom, he said, even support movements "working for the destruction of Christianity" or that attack "the existence of human civilization." He was believed referring to Catholics in the ranks of Italian Communists.

THOUSANDS of Romans, the Pope said, continue to entertain themselves. Christians and remain surprised when the Church refuses to consider them as true faithful. They are baptized and profess faith in Jesus Christ, but they don't observe God's commandments.

"In fact despite explicit condemnations by the Church and her many warnings and serious and solemn exhortations, they continue to maintain that one may simultaneously serve God and the enemy of God. It may even happen that, if forced to make a choice, they prefer to abandon their Church and remain without the Sacraments, not only during life, but also at the hour of death."

At the close of his talk, Pope Pius stressed the great need for more vocations to the priesthood. He said it was lamentable that too few young men choose to enter the seminary.

Cardinal Bans 'Rock 'n Roll' In Schools

Chicago — (RNS)—Cardinal Stritch, in a Lenten pastoral letter, condemned the use of rock 'n roll music in Catholic high schools and recreation centers.

The Archbishop of Chicago also criticized steady dating among teenagers, saying that "too much familiarity between the adolescent girl and adolescent boy is dangerous and sinful."

Cardinal Stritch described rock 'n roll as "tribal rhythms which have a certain vogue in our day." The fact that such dancing and music is permitted in some Catholic high schools and recreation centers, he said, "should bring the blush of shame to Catholic educators."

These schools and centers exist to assist parents in providing their youngsters "with holy ideals and noble thoughts and aspirations," the prelate said.

"God grant that this word will have the effect of banning such things in Catholic recreation," he added.

In general, the Cardinal's letter concerned the need for family sanctification and holiness. He stressed that the family lives in an era of secularizing influences and in a world which daily "is casting aside religious ideals and seeking to substitute humanitarianism for religion."
