Builders Unveil New Split Level

Caldwell & Cook, builders and developers of the growing Lakeview tract in Greece, will open their new Bel Air front-to-rear split level model today for public inspection, according to an announcement from Dick Holden, Sales Director.

"The graceful Bel Air emphasizes casual comfort with the charm and stability of traditional design," he stated. "The home's practical yet imaginative design was planned with an understanding of contemporary family living needs and tastes. By virtue of its up and down, front-to-rear split level construction, the Bel Air can function almost like two houses under one roof."

Three different levels in the new model provide variety and interest and introduce an unusual feeling of spaciousness. The basement is a perfect headquarters for the entire family's casual hours, the sponsors indicate, or as a base for the more lively activities of the youngsters without disturbing the more formal living and bedroom levels.

Another advantage of the front-to-rear split level plan, Holden said, is the flexibility in exterior design which it allows. Unlike the more conventional split level, the Bel Air can introduce a variety of elevations, each retaining a fresh individuality.

Combining glamor and practicality, the Bel Air is a product of popular demand, according to veteran developers, Jack Caldwell and Jerry Cook.

This model and others are open daily from 1 to 9 at Lakeview, off Latta Road between Dewey and Lake Holden concluded.

Seneca Falls Man Named Drive Aide Of Trinity College

Francis J. Souhan, president of GEB and Souhan Yam Co., Inc., Seneca Falls is a regional co-chairman in a campaign to raise $1,690,000.00 for a new library and art and music center at Trinity College, Washington, D. C., according to Sister Mary J. Powers, Jr. of Youngstown, O. Mrs. John J. Glavin of Albany is the other regional co-chairman. The 300 member committee working on the drive which begins in May is headed by John Jr. of Youngstown, Ohio.

THE NEW structure, southwest of the main building at Trinity, will harmonize architecturally with existing buildings and, with its tile roof and Alabaster limestone walls, carry out Trinity's "Red Roof" tradition.

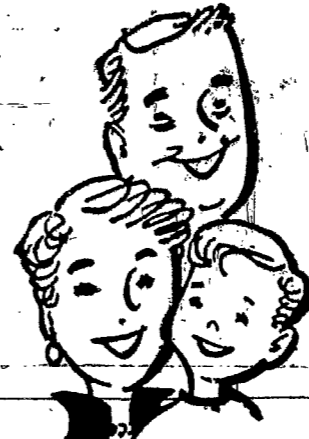

On two levels and completely air-conditioned, the 45,117 square foot building will provide reading space for 350 students and shelf area for 150,000 volumes.

Plans include a large reading room, with mezzanine, great glass sections on the side facing the chapel, an outdoor reading court, reference and periodical rooms, 100 individual study tables or carrels, a multi-level reading conference and typing rooms, offices, and a rare book room to house Trinity's valuable collection.

An art and music library will connect the main library with architectural wings housing the Art and Music Departments in these quarters will be classrooms, studios, offices and soundproof practice rooms.

Builder Completes Homeowner Survey

Coincidental with the long-range planning of the "Homar" tract off Dewey Avenue, Greece, in Our Mother of Sorrows parish, builder Joseph Entress has recently completed a house-to-house homeowner survey. It has been announced. The purpose of the resident canvass was to obtain opinions from families already living there... on topics that might even further improve the pattern of expansion already in progress with the tract.

Mr. Entress reported a splendid spirit of cooperation from the households without exception in answering a questionnaire that performed to many phases of the tract's development, home construction, features most valued, conveniences of location, etc.

The Rochester builder and developer is leaving with members of his family after Easter for a combined pleasure and business trip to California which will include tours of inspection of some of San Francisco's leading residential tracts.
