

Suppose Nobody Cared?

By Mary Louise Snyder

The Council of Catholic Women, which has been separated from her communion. The Church must live among them and with them; she can never declare before anyone that she is "not interested."

The Catholic woman, therefore, cannot be indifferent to the needs of the community of which she is a member. She cannot lightly dismiss such concerns as those of her own housing, proper recreational facilities, rehabilitation, health, and parochial school education. These and other concerns affect her, her family, and her community.

"It is true, of course, that she may not actively participate with others because of her own immediate and pressing concerns at home. But still she will seek to enlighten herself on such issues, because she does care."

"The Catholic woman, however, who does have time to give, who has first discharged her primary responsibilities to her home and family, may well seize opportunities of transmitting what may be purely natural projects into projects that are spiritually rich."

"It may mean an hour or two each week spent driving the sick to clinics, or supervising recreational activities for the handicapped, or helping immigrants to adjust to their new way of life, or even doing some free-time typing for a local social agency."

"To some, these activities may generate a vague sense of 'well-being'; to us who see Christ in our neighbors, they should mean the opportunity of performing additional spiritual and corporal works of mercy."

"For us it is Christ who falls in the brass of the polo victim, as he falls and fell on His way of the Cross. It is Christ who is visited or forgotten in the wards of hospitals where hope has grown gray walls."

"It is Christ who paces the long corridors that seem to stretch out endlessly. It is Christ who teaches, guiding us to the child who cannot see or hear or speak."

"Suppose nobody cared? So long as Christ cares, we must care."

DOINGS AT THE DALY'S

Engagement Firsts

By Mary Tinley Daly

Saturday late: The Head of the House is always alert—until the last family member is in, but this time I was as fully awake as he.

"Want to see something?" Eileen asked, extending her left hand. "Sparkles even in this dim light, doesn't it?"

Sparkle it did, not so much as Eileen's blue eyes.

Mary Daly

Sunday: Release date for newspaper announcement only "half-stick of type" according to professional jargon, and one, a dozen, or more like announcements. When the papers were delivered, front pages with their really significant news were quickly rifled through to the society column—of A-1 importance on that day.

"Oh..." Eileen's eyes widened and we could see disappointment cloud her face. "Well," she half-smiled, "here we go again with that 'official Mary' business!"

SHE SHOWED us the small piece and its headline which read: "Mary Daly—Anthony Greenman." The item itself, of course, identified her as Mary (Eileen Daly).

Similar mixups have happened many times over the years, and maybe this could be a tip-off to young parents who have the same idea we had. Every girl we decided would have Mary in her name in honor of the Blessed Mother. So it went: "Mary Patricia, Mary Eileen, Mary Louise, (the only one called Mary) and Mary Virginia. Hence, on school and church records, for drivers' licenses and the like, each is Miss Mary Daly—sometimes with middle initial, sometimes not.

Only reason Marie is officially registered as Margaret Daly is that she was baptized on the last day of St. Margaret Mary.

and our pastor called it to our attention, so we changed the planned Mary Margaret to Margaret. It's something to remember, all you young parents, put the "name-to-be-called" first.

Back to the engagement... Needless to say, after the announcement, there was a lot of kidding, of which the high school Mary Daly took full advantage in her wry way.

Monday: the engagement party, with relatives and friends of Eileen and Tony asked to stop by our house for an informal reception.

IT STARTED OFF, as all such things do, with a "little list" a la Gilbert and Sullivan, and ended resembling another literary classic, ALICE IN WONDERLAND, growing, and growing, and GROWING.

"Well, we can certainly add one more," somebody would say. "But of course she goes steady, that means just one more..."

The "one more" and "two more" relatives and close friends they wouldn't mind. If the day should be nice, they could spread out onto the porch and the lawn. If not, they wouldn't mind.

After all, when two young people have grown up in the same neighborhood, naturally they acquire a good many friends close by. And both being of large families, there are, thank goodness, lots of relatives. Our pastor, Monsignor Roach, came, as did Father Carl Lyon, C.S.O. moderator, who has known Eileen since she played on the C.Y.O. basketball team and has known Tony since he was a little fellow serving Snack food and a cool drink and that was that. Best of all, good fellowship and hearty good wishes to youngsters about to embark on one of life's most gallant adventures.

ANYBODY WANT a recipe for fool-proof cream puffs? Make 'em bite-size, fill with chicken or giant sized, split, and fill with ice cream or custard, pour chocolate sauce over them and you have "fat ladies' delight" for a dunchoon. Here it is:

Heat oven to 400 degrees. In a pan on stove top boil one-half cup of water, add one-half stick of butter. Bring to a rolling boil and add one-half cup of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, stirring vigorously. Put under mixer and add an egg, moving pan around until the mixture is smooth. Add another egg, still moving pan to make a smooth mixture under mixer. Drop batter onto greased cookie sheet—40 for small, 20 for large cream puffs. Bake for 45 minutes for larger. Do not open door for first 20-25 minutes. Cool by turning off oven and leaving door open. They can be stored in tight containers until needed.

Tuesday: announcement and party over "Commercials" set in the mail filled with advertisements.

8. How do the menus compare with what your parent has been eating? What's the kitchen like? Is tray service available for bed patients?
9. Can patients have personal physicians?
10. What are the rules of admission, visiting, delivery and dispatch of mail? What is the basic cost?
