The Mercy Guild

Laywomen conduct fund-raising ventures for Community Health

The Mercy Guild of St. Therese, the Little Flower, has not turned around its 100th birthday, but is looking forward to the next three decades. Since the first year of its organization in 1905, the Guild has been an integral part of the Rochester community, serving in various capacities and providing support for the Sisters of Mercy.

Founded to organize the Rochester friends and relatives of the Sisters of Mercy, the Guild has been a valuable resource for the Sisters of Mercy, providing financial support and building community awareness.

The formation of the Mercy Guild was the result of the first report of the Sisters of Mercy for public use.

Mrs. Walter B. Hickey, Mercy Guild President, discussed plans with Brother Emsen.

100 YEARS
IN THE DIOCESE OF ROCHESTER
CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY
OF GREAT ACHIEVEMENTS

100 YEARS OF
SISTERS OF MERCY
SISTERS OF MERCY GUILD

St. James Mercy Hospital—Hornell

St. James Mercy Hospital has been a cornerstone of the community since its establishment in 1890. Located in Hornell, New York, the hospital has provided healthcare services to the region for over a century. Today, St. James Mercy Hospital continues to be a leading healthcare provider, offering a range of services and programs to meet the needs of the community.

Sister Mary Aquinas

Sister Mary Aquinas, superintendent of St. James Mercy Hospital since 1984, credits the generous support of the community for the hospital's success.

The hospital's history is rich with contributions from various individuals and organizations. Since its establishment in 1890, the hospital's mission has remained consistent: to provide the highest quality healthcare services to the community.

The Sisters of Mercy have been an integral part of the hospital's history, leading it through various phases of growth and development. Today, St. James Mercy Hospital continues to build on its legacy, providing exceptional care and service to the people of the Southern Tier.

Sister Mary Aquinas, the current superintendent of St. James Mercy Hospital, speaks passionately about the hospital's mission and its commitment to the community.

The hospital's success is a testament to the dedication of its staff, the support of the community, and the unwavering commitment to providing exceptional care. St. James Mercy Hospital continues to be a vital resource for the people of the Southern Tier, offering hope and healing to those in need.