For this reason anyone who has books charged to him should make a special effort to get them back to the Library before they become overdue. There are many books overdue for which patrons are asking. Their return would be greatly appreciated. RELIABLE PATRONS who desire to take out several books to read during the summer vacation may take advantage of what is called "Vacation Privilege." This means they will be charged only one cent a day for the full time the book is out without having to pay overdue book charges.

If it is desired to take advantage of this privilege, the librarian in charge may be consulted. However, if the books are lost, recompense to the full value of the books will be expected. A visit to the Library may be made to make a good selection for summer reading.
