Thief Admits Stealing Church Bell

Isleton, Calif. (NC) — A 400-pound church bell, which disappeared from St. Therese's Church here last November, was stolen by a casual thief who broke it into pieces, decided the metal was worthless, and threw the pieces into the city dump.

Police here reported they had a confession in the case from a Richmond, Calif., man who said he took the bell on a whim while passing through Isleton. It had been lowered to the street level during repairs on the church bellfry.

The man told police he later discovered that the pieces of bronze and silver bell metal were worth $1 a pound. When he went back to the dump the metal was gone.

Charges were being delayed on the man's promise to reimburse the church.
