

Day Mass Slated For Family, Auburn

A special Labor Day Mass for working men will be celebrated at 9:30 a. m. in Holy Family Church at Auburn. It was announced today by the Rev. Richard Nangle, pastor of Holy Family, who will give the sermon.

Members of the Mass will be available to all those in attendance. Father Nangle, pastor of Holy Family, will give the sermon.

A letter sent out this week by representatives of labor unions in the Auburn area, Father Nangle said, "Labor Day is your annual holiday and a day on which the dignity and efforts of honest labor are recalled and exalted. We feel that part of that day should be dedicated directly to Almighty God, begging His blessings through this special Mass, thanking Him for His gracious bounty to labor through the year, and asking Him to inspire labor, high and low, with unrepentable principles of morality and justice."
