

Education Week Events Slated At College

Nazareth College is inviting parents, neighbors, teachers, and friends to share in the participation of the college in American Education Week, Nov. 10-16.

On Sunday, Nov. 10, at 2 p.m., parents of Freshmen are invited to attend the investiture of their daughters in academic cap and gown by His Excellency Bishop Shannon. Following the ceremony in the college auditorium, they will have the opportunity of meeting members of the faculty in the new library.

Nazareth's observance of American Education Week will be ushered in by a High Mass in the Motherhouse Chapel, Sunday morning, at 9:30, in thanksgiving for freedom of education in America. The Rev. William H. Shannon, college chaplain, will preach the sermon on the theme "An Educated People Move Freedom Forward," with special emphasis on the theme assigned to Sunday, Education for Moral Values.

Monday, November 11, has been designated as Neighborhood Day. Residents in the college area are invited to visit the college, especially the new library.

In the evening, the Board of Directors of the Alumnae Association will hold a business meeting, and on the following day, there will be a meeting at the college of the Board of the Nazareth College Guild.

A HIGH MASS for deceased members of the family and the alumnae is scheduled for Wednesday morning, Nov. 13, in the Motherhouse Chapel. Friends and relatives of the deceased are invited to participate.

Alumnae and friends of the college, as well as the general public, are invited to attend lectures in the college auditorium on both Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

On Wednesday at 3 p.m. Alice Curran, Irish scholar, hagiologist and lecturer, will be the speaker. She is probably best known for her book on Saint Catherine of Siena, in whom she became interested while studying in Italy and for the many other lives of saints, at least 100, written in the modern "human interest" manner.

Since her marriage in 1935 to Stephen Rynne, farmer-author, she has lived in the village of Prosperous in County Kildare, Ireland, and for the many other lives of saints, at least 100, written in the modern "human interest" manner.

The Rev. Ademar DePauw, O.F.M., is scheduled for Thursday afternoon at 2:15 on the subject: Africa: The Continent of the Future. Father DePauw received his M.A. in Political Science from Columbia University and is professor in the Africa Department of the Overseas Institute, French University, New York.

HIS MANY YEARS of work in Africa, especially in the Belgian Congo, as missionary, as counselor to the miners and as assistant inspector of schools, qualify him to speak authoritatively on the future of this vast continent.

He has traveled extensively in Africa, 35,000 miles in the Belgian Congo alone, has published a number of books and many articles on Missiology, African Linguistics, Colonial problems, and the United Nations Trust territories.

Closing the week's activities will be the annual Fall production of the Speech and Dramatics Department, on Friday and Saturday evenings, November 15-16.

This year an original work has been chosen—"The Widow," by Robert Smet, long identified with Catholic Theatre, and now vice-president of the National Catholic Theatre Conference.

Supervising teachers of the senior education students, who are now doing their cadet teaching in the Rochester and suburban schools, will be guests of the seniors for these performances.

THE ENTIRE PROGRAM has been planned with the purpose of American Education Week in view—the interpretation of education and its role in the life of the community. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend all or any part of the program.

'Freedom' Theme At Aquinas Marks Education Week

Thirty-five exhibits designed and executed by students of Aquinas Institute will highlight the 37th annual observance of American Education Week. A special committee was organized this week under the chairmanship of Henry Hess of St. John's Parish, Spencerport.

Theme for the 1957 AEW observance is "An Educated People Move Freedom Forward." The activities of the week, focused on that theme, will call attention to the vital role of education in building and maintaining our American way of life.

THE CARDINAL Newman Library club will be host to the school faculty at a social hour during the week at which time new books and materials will be displayed. Michael Ripston, president of the Club, will act as chairman.

Culminating the events of American Education Week will be open house for the parents of Aquinas Institute to be held on Nov. 19 and 21, at the school.

Bishop Kearney To Be Guest At Seton Charity Dinner

The Seton Charity Ball will be held at the Manger Seneca Hotel this Saturday, Nov. 9. This year's is completely "sold out," according to chairman Mrs. Paul Neubert.

His Excellency Bishop Kearney will be guest of honor at the dinner preceding the dance. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Syl Novelli's orchestra will play for dancing. The Waltz Contest will be a highlight of the evening, open to all who wish to participate.

CHAIRMAN OF THE Ball include: Mesdames Francis McConville, Harry Norton, advisory; J. Joseph McMahon, secretary; J. William Quinn, William Howe, patrons; John J. Butler, William R. Brunson, tickets; Thomas Farrell, Benedict J. Messner; A. Gordon Ide, John W. Colgan, arrangements.

Also, Mesdames Theodore Olson, reservations; James Lane and Dallas Healy, decorations; Joseph S. Weber, and Charles Getzner, reception; Alfred Boylan and James Shaw, entertainment; John R. Hanna and Robert A. Keefe, publicity; William Bertsch and Joseph A. Hudson, program.

DOINGS AT THE DALY'S

Like all grandparents now, we hoped it would, but we turned it down nevertheless.

now and then. And we love it. Last Saturday night was our turn.

Consistently Lu had the four youngsters tucked in—all sound asleep—when we arrived. Dishes were washed, TV program, favorite magazines and snacks were laid out—sitting Deluxe. We made a quick and silent one-two of the bedrooms: Lu Anne and Dierdre, snug in their red flannel nightgowns, two-year old Sean resplendent in Indian chief pajamas, and baby Maura wearing pink "night-nights" as she slept in her crib.

The young parents hadn't been gone ten minutes before the Head of the House began to get lonesome: "Mighty quiet around here without the kids," he commented uneasily. "You don't suppose they're sick?"

No, we answered, they're undoubtedly very well or they would be restless, and Saturday night TV shows?

SO WE WATCHED TV for a while. "Look at that little girl on the screen," the Head of the House chuckled at one of the dancing darlings. "Looks like Dierdre doesn't she? But not as cute. Think the volume of this might wake 'em up?"

We knew that he secretly

TV doesn't keep us enraptured, for very long so we shut it off and settled down to reading, each of us in a separate corner.

"Say," the Head of the House munched peanuts and looked up from his paper, "sure funny without the youngsters. Remember how sometimes they come on down? Lu Anne especially. Well, I guess she's just tired." He flipped the paper to the sports page, and the sitting continued in silence.

"Think maybe we'd better check," my sitting companion asked. "See if they're covered? That Sean can sure kick covers. And Maura—what a baby! Didn't we use to get ours up at night when they were a year old?"

MAYBE WE DID—but these aren't our children, we reminded. However, we made the spot check, the Head of the House assembling the stairs as though it were broad daylight. But not even he woke the sleeping Lu Anne and Dierdre. They simply rolled over and sighed as we pulled blankets into place. Dierdre reached out sleepily for her doll.

"Hiya, boy?" the Head of the House half-whispered, lifting his grandson's legs from on top of the covers and giving him a pat. "Bark," Sean mumbled, opening one blue, grabbing his blanket and going back to sleep.

"Yep, they're fine," the Head of the House tried one last ill-concocted ruse and closed the door on the tired trio.

Religious Orders Of Women In Our Diocese

By Mary Lennon Snyder

I include in this group not only the mothers who shed their personal professional ambitions in favor of the primary responsibilities of motherhood, but also the single girls and women who deny themselves the luxuries, trips, and sundry self-indulgences which they might enjoy if they stay at home to care for aged parents or other relatives.

IN MY TALK I spoke of the cultural, moral, and spiritual heritage which is ours as Catholic women, and I went away back in history to mention some of the benefactors who have endowed us with the great treasures which are ours to claim.

Later it occurred to me that we are particularly indebted to those women of a generations ago who built our organizations so nobly and enduringly that we accept the privilege of affiliation and membership almost without question. I thought of the beautiful figure in which I spoke of the religious life, the driving purpose, the far-sounding vision, which the women of the past have bequeathed to the Catholic women of Rochester and acquired such a fulfillment.

IN THE PRAYFUL hope that she would accept my invitation to accompany me to Rochester, I read so many articles about the problem of the cell and had promised Mary Eileen that I would be back in Auburn by educating Catholic women that I mighting, and we were it we have been fortunate in knowing a wonderful few hours which we have been truly wise in putting both thoroughly enjoyed.

At the Catholic Women's beautiful home on Alexander Street I met many old and new friends. It was my first visit to the Club house, and I was impressed with its many excellent aspects.

Religious of the Convent came to the Rochester Diocese in 1918 to found a Retreat House for women in the former Todd mansion on East Ave. Founded in 1826, the order's particular work is giving retreats and teaching Christian doctrine.

Catholic Women's Club
By Mary Lennon Snyder
The last two weeks have been interesting ones in which I renewed old friendships and made new acquaintances. On Monday, October 21st in the late afternoon of a beautiful autumn day I started out for Rochester to be guest speaker at a meeting of the Catholic Women's Club. Since I was the speaker, my role was to present a message to the club, yet the short trip to and from Rochester, my visit with friends, my stay at the Club, all offered me many thoughts for quiet moments and dark days.
With me was Mary Dillon, and as we visited, travelling along the Truway, there ran two conversational threads as a sort of leit-motif the perfect beauty of the fall day and the wonderful boon the Truway is to us all.
ARRIVING IN Rochester we stopped at the home of the Frank and Curtiss whose customary hospitality was further enhanced by the presence of a small visitor, the baby daughter of Dr. Robert and Dr. Mary Leahy. I found considerable material for thought which the women of the past have bequeathed to the Catholic women of Rochester and acquired such a fulfillment.
IN THE PRAYFUL hope that she would accept my invitation to accompany me to Rochester, I read so many articles about the problem of the cell and had promised Mary Eileen that I would be back in Auburn by educating Catholic women that I mighting, and we were it we have been fortunate in knowing a wonderful few hours which we have been truly wise in putting both thoroughly enjoyed.
