A quarter is still a pretty valuable coim. It will buy a loaf of bread, a handkerchief, a package of cigarettes.

And when it comes to electricity for the average family, a quarter will buy a whole day's supply. Electricity for lights, TV and radio entertainment, refrigeration, cooking, laundry—and also for small appliances such as the vacuum cleaner, toaster, coffeemaker.

Even if yours is a big family and you use many more electric conveniences than this, electric service is the biggest bargain in your family budget.

Try dividing your next electric bill into the number of jobs I do - then divide the bill by the number of days I worked. You'll be surprised how inexpensive my services are.
