

Nazareth Students Hear Texas Writer

Miss Cowell Newcomb, author of Black Fire and The Red Hat, spoke at Nazareth College yesterday (Thursday) as part of the Nazareth College Lecture Series. A native of San Antonio, Texas, Miss Newcomb, as a young child, "took" to letters and her love of them showed itself at an early age. She attended Nazareth College in San Antonio, then Washington University in St. Louis, Hunter College, New York University, and Columbia, all in New York City. She became a Catholic in 1925, a convert from Anglicanism. Black Fire, her first book, was published in 1940. In 1942 she received the Downey Medal for "the finest American children's book of 1941," written in the Catholic tradition. In The Red Hat, the story-biography of Cardinal Newman.

Thoughtful inspiration and practical suggestions. The past year's message quoted above is one that should be of value to everyone. As a sister of St. Mary's, I recall the woman who told me that when she found the members of her family, she was not only a mother but also a sister. This is the spirit that should be the basis of all religious life.

The Holy Season

As the year draws to a close, we are reminded of the holy season ahead. The Christmas season is a time of joy and hope. It is a time when we are reminded of the love and mercy of God. We are reminded of the peace and joy that come from the birth of the Christ Child. We are reminded of the love and mercy of God who sends His Son to save the world.

DOINGS AT THE DALY'S

A little late to be writing about the visit of Queen Elizabeth II? Certainly, miles of typewritten ribbons must have been worn ink-bare in spot news reporting in features, editorial comment and encomia. Her wardrobe has been described from every scarlet velvet fold of the chic millinery to the stylishly smart but comfortable shoes. The Queen's smile, her walk, complexion, manner, they have all been described journalistically from the great metropolitan dailies to the smallest county monthly.

Mary Daly

Like millions of other Americans, we saw the Queen and Prince Philip, like thousands of other newspaper people we had the pleasure of meeting them at the large press reception in Washington.

AS THE LINE slowly trailed its way toward the Queen, we had a good chance to study her without seeming to stare. We were impressed as were so many others with the sparkle in her blue eyes, at the genuine friendliness of her smile and the firm

The Queen and Other 'Career' Women

In many a city room, in a multitude of offices, behind counters in stores, we have seen the same spirit in women as that evidenced by the Queen. Through one circumstance or another, they have to lead a public as well as a private life. It's no "Take it or leave it" proposition. It's TAKE IT.

WHAT PROMPTED this late report of the Queen's visit and admiration for her spirit?

Well, it was a newspaper picture widely circulated, and perhaps you saw it too. It depicted the Queen Elizabeth II on her first day home in England with little Princess Anne, aged seven. There was the same bright smile that we had seen but this time it was a relaxed motherly smile as he arm rested lightly and lovingly around the shoulders of the little daughter.
