Revenue Service Offers Assistance To Taxpayers

The Internal Revenue Service during the 1958 income tax filing season will again stress self-help as its basic theme of taxpayer assistance. District Director E. C. Coyle, Jr. has announced.

"The self-help program," he said, "means that taxpayers complete as much of their returns as possible before asking help from us. Most taxpayers can do the whole job after a careful reading of the form itself and its accompanying instruction booklet."

"WE ARE STILL going to provide help to those who actually need it," said Director Coyle, "and we shall stress our telephone assistance program, which will enable taxpayers with problems to call us up for a quick answer designed to enable them to complete preparation of their returns."

"Office assistance," he said, "will be available where required but will naturally entail considerably more of the taxpayer's time."

The most important thing to the taxpayer in preparing a return or in seeking telephone or office assistance," the Director explained, "is to have all of his 1957 financial records in hand and to have all the necessary facts in mind."

TELEPHONE ASSISTANCE may be obtained by calling: Rochester, New York (41 State St.) - Hamilton 6-1497; Elmira, New York (204 Post Office Bldg.) - 25464; Bath, New York (Post Office Bldg.) - (No phone); Geneva, New York (7 Post Office Bldg.) - 94321; Hornell, New York (Post Office Bldg.) (No
