CWV Commander Cites Fight Against Indecent Books In Public Schools

The current program of the Catholic War Veterans to combat indecent books found in libraries of the nation's public schools has rocked the nation, according to National Commander Peter J. Hopkins of Yonkers. He spoke at the banquet following the afternoon session of the twelfth annual convention, Monroe County Chapter, Catholic War Veterans, Sunday in Powers Hotel.

The program has gained widespread support from citizens and taxpayers in general, as well as from other veterans organizations, according to Hopkins. "With perseverance and prayer we will win this fight for decency," he said. He commended the Monroe County Chapter for its annual Outstanding Catholic Layman and Laywoman Awards.

He pointed out that today there is a great deal of discussion among intellectuals and liberals for conferences with the Soviet Union. "Those who propose such meetings must be blind to the history of double talk and broken promises of the Soviet Union," he said. "How do you bargain with international brigands? The Catholic War Veterans are opposed to any deals, agreements or what have you with the Soviet Union," he said.

SPEAKING of the American prisoners of war in Red China, he urged those present to take immediate action to effect their release. "Let Congress know that you are interested in these boys," he said. Commander Hopkins said that the Catholic War Veterans are aware of current efforts to "sift the meat from the budget, while the fat remains on financial expenditures elsewhere." He said, "Let's begin cutting expenditures far away and leave the veterans appropriations in the budget exactly as they are."

The veterans by resolution commended the newly organized Civic Indecent Literature Committee for the noteworthy public service which each member is performing.

Besides Commander Hopkins, other guests included Monsignor Joseph R. Koch, State Chaplain, Catholic War Veterans, Charles F. Shelley, state commander, and Mrs. Dorothy Hillen, state auxiliary president.

MISGR. KOCH—a native of Rochester, spoke on the history of the organization on the national level. "The Catholic War Veterans is the only organization of Catholic laymen and lay women recognized by the Veterans Administration," he said.

CHARLES KAISER

Stressing that the Catholic War Veterans has taken an ever increasing role in promoting the welfare of our citizens and in bringing Christian principles into the home, he pointed out that the organization faces a serious problem in membership. "The Catholic War Veterans warrants a larger membership than it has. Its current membership is far out of proportion to eligible Catholic veterans in Monroe County," he said. "Most of the eligible veterans are victims of apathy and indifference. Many have not been contacted personally and know little of Catholic War Veterans." Monsignor Koch also urged posts in Monroe County to carry out an active program to increase membership.

Charles Kaiser of St. Augustin's Post was elected County Commander. The Rev. Anthony Calamei, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, was announced as county chaplain.

Elected also were: Arthur Buckley, First Vice-Commander; Gerald Russell, Second Vice-Commander; Ralph Bieler, Third Vice-Commander; William J. Silvey, Treasurer; William Cronin, Judge-Advocate; Sam Colantoni, Welfare Officer; Dr. James Gleason, Medical Officer; Raymond E. Jeffery, Historian; Trevor Durant, Officer of the Day.

Others elected were: Miss Barbara Foss, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Eileen Manzek, second vice-president; Miss Mary Cassella, 3rd vice-president; Miss Charlotte Rightmeyer, treasurer; Miss Alice Brien, welfare officer; Miss Marie Logan, historian; Mrs. Mae Switzer, ritual officer; Miss Bernice Trunk, Mrs. Kay Ruff, Mrs. Mary Cieslinski, trustees.

Dorothy Hillen, president of the N.Y. Department CWV, installed the officers. Miss Eaves made awards to eight women who worked at the veterans hospitals at Bath and Canandaigua.
