Realtor Committee Reports Closed Sunday "Favorable"

All channels of real estate sales activity appear to be favorable toward a "Closed Sunday" in regard to holding houses open for inspection on that day, according to a local survey just completed by a fact finding committee of the Real Estate Board of Rochester headed by Andrew Chenelly.

The group of realtors appointed by the Board to study Sunday closing included Andrew Chenelly, chairman, William C. Kane, Mrs. Helen Mittmann, William G. Marx, Arthur L. Sekol, Thomas S. Willis, Jr., and John T. Nothnagle.

Among the facts disclosed to the Board for formal consideration and probable action were: It is believed that the public wants to initiate a complete Sunday observance.

Due to the prevalence of a 5-day work week and the acceptance of Tuesday and Thursday shopping evenings plus all day Saturday, there is actually no need for houses to be held open for inspection on Sundays.

Every visitor to an "Open House" on Sunday is a CUSTOMER of the firm holding the house available for inspection, thus violating the ethics of doing business on the Lord's Day.

Sunday closing would raise the professional level of home buying by discouraging the shoe-string operation of part-time Sunday workers. (In this regard it was emphasized that high calibre men and women, regularly employed in real estate and home building, in the aggregate, take Sunday off, but are forced by local competitive conditions to appoint part time workers to represent them on properties on Sundays to obtain "visitor lists".

The emphatic statement of the Miami realtor, Kenneth Keyes, to the effect that "real estate people will prosper through the formal observance of the Lord's Day, Keyes strongly endorsed Sunday closing during his recent visit to Rochester as 1957 president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The fast-growing national trend toward Sunday closing is notably evidenced in Miami, Minneapolis (Minn.) and Denver, Colorado. A Denver realtor, Max Moore, obtained widespread acclaim when he addressed a large gathering of realtors in that city. Pointing to a picture of a church, he said, "Salesmen... this is our Sunday 'Open House'." In Minneapolis, 80 realtors unanimously endorsed Sunday closing.

The County Real Estate Board (COREB), according to a recent statement of Board President Henry T. Perkins, will act in accord with the majority decision on Sunday closing.

The Rochester Home Builders Association, according to an opinion expressed by president Frank J. Schantz to the Real Estate Board Committee, "will go along provided there is just cooperation from the Real Estate Board of Rochester, the County Real Estate Board, independent real estate brokers and independent builders."

In summarizing the results of the survey of his committee, realtor Andy Chenelly pointed out:

"There is an evident reluctance among certain leaders, particularly representative of the home building industry, to take a positive stand for concerted action on this proposal... In other words, there is a tendency to play the old Army game of 'passing the buck'."

In the opinion of this writer, if the Real Estate Board, the Rochester Home Builders and COREB would abruptly announce that no houses under their joint sales control would be held open on Sunday henceforth, the buying of homes, like automobiles, would be restricted to week-day transactions.

This positive action in the interests of non-commercialism of the day set apart for religious observances could not help but have a beneficial effect on the home buying industry.

Nun's Holy Card Series Released

A new series of holy cards was released by Sister M. Magdalen, S.S.J., chairman of the Nazareth College Art Department, this week. Twenty different subjects — ten founders of religious orders and ten other popular saints are included in this series, which is in the form of book marks.

Among the subjects are St. Dominic, St. Francis of Assisi, St. Francis Xavier, St. Teresa of Avila, St. Bernadette, St. Anthony, the Cure of Ars, St. Vincent de Paul.

Sister Magdalen's cards have been well received throughout the country and the new series is eagerly awaited by those who have become acquainted with her unique verse cards and original drawings.

CAMELOT HILLS RESIDENTS TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF CATHOLIC SCHOOL

Catholic residents of Camelot Hills, fast growing subdivision off E. Henrietta Rd., are watching with interest the construction of a school directly in rear of Church of the Good Shepherd. This is less than a mile and a quarter from Camelot Hills.

Reverend George C. Vogt, pastor, says that the school will be ready for occupancy by September 1st. Two large and six regular size class rooms will be in use. There will also be a large auditorium and gym.

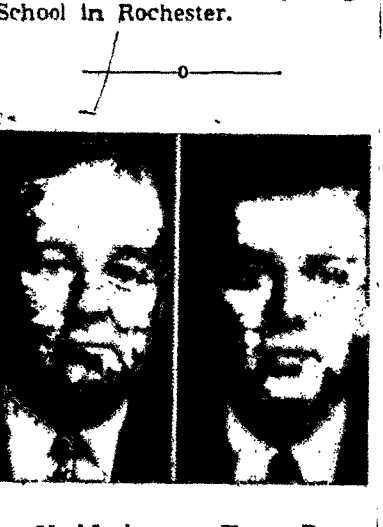

College Who's Who Chooses Mercy Grad

Miss Patricia K. Dillon, 300 Westminster Road, Rochester, a senior at Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C., was selected from the University for admission to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

She is one of 23 students so named on the basis of "excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extra-curricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to business and society."

Majoring in American History in the University's College of Arts and Sciences, Miss Dillon also takes part in many of the campus student activities. She is a member of the Columbians, social club for women on campus, and of the Spiritual Council. During Junior Year, she was secretary of her class and a princess of the Queen's Court for Homecoming. She is now president of her dormitory council, on the staff of the college annual, The Cardinal, and one of the cheerleading squad.

Daughter of Mrs. Ruth M. Dillon, she is a June, 1954 graduate of Our Lady of Mercy High School in Rochester.

Helps Dream Come True

Corning Nun Credited With Aiding Elmira Teacher To Achieve Goal

Corning — Sister Loretta, a fifth grade teacher at St. Mary's School, Corning, is given credit for making it possible for a former Brooklyn student to achieve a lifelong dream — becoming a teacher in Elmira.

Teacher Arlene Dolinsky, now at Booth School in Elmira, was the subject of a feature story in the Elmira Star-Gazette. The article, penned by Covey Hoover, follows:

Little Arlene Dolinsky had a dream. She wanted to be a teacher. Specifically, she wanted to teach the fifth grade.

The years have passed. Arlene is a teacher. And she teaches fifth graders at Booth School.

Her 33 pupils don't realize that their teacher's path turned toward their own when her family moved to Elmira from Brooklyn and enrolled Arlene at St. Patrick's School. The transfer in schools brought on a curriculum crisis. There was a question of her being able to stay in the fifth grade.

A KINDLY NUN took care of the question. "Sister Loretta worked so hard with me," reminisces Arlene. "I had to make good. She took such an interest."

The interest helped carry Arlene to Catholic High, Elmira Free Academy and Cortland State Teachers College. Her healthy good looks won her several titles along the way: Miss Elmira, Miss Eastern League and Cortland Homecoming Queen — but none of these possible head-turners dethroned her from her goal. She received her bachelor of science degree in elementary education last June.

Sister Loretta's influence was great. It still is. You see it in Arlene's classroom where the basic philosophy is simple. "A child," she asserts, "should have very rich experiences."

HER PUPILS DO have rich experiences. Possibly because still a sense of discipline. "It has to come from within," says their teacher. "They have to learn to be dependent and independent. We try to have them learn in the classroom."

ARLENE DOESN'T minimize the influence of a teacher. She views her work as a big responsibility in a contributing role to society. "You're molding them... your attitude, your personality, your character. All have an impact."

She is grateful to her fellow faculty members. "They're wonderfully cooperative." She feels she can go to any one of them for discussion or guidance.

Principal G. Ellsworth Bradley helps explain that as Arlene talks to some pupils by her desk. He cites her desire to teach her understanding of youngsters and her quiet efficiency. "We, here, also know we have a teacher."

His comment and one from Arlene herself might be the hallmarks of her life to date. "I couldn't possibly be happy doing anything else," she says.

FEW PEOPLE GET an opportunity to realize their fondest hope. But it appears that the little girl who listened to Sister Loretta at St. Patrick's has had her dream come true.
