'OUR LADY IN SNOW' — Georgia-native Janine Styer, a freshman at Nazareth College, spending her first winter in Rochester, carved a snow replica of the shrine grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes on the college campus.

Girls Carve 'Snow Madonna'

By PAUL CONTESTABLE

Heavy snowfall that tied up traffic and caused dismay to many Rochesterians brought a ray of sunshine to at least one Nazareth College student last week. While most people were far from happy about the snow, Janine Styer viewed her first snowfall and exclaimed: "It's wonderful!"

Snow is a novelty to Janine, who hails from Atlanta, Ga. A freshman art major at the college, she was quick to put her studies to use through a new medium — snow sculpture.

THE COLLEGE'S "Winter Weekend" was at hand (Feb. 7 to 9). Janine and her friends agreed to enter the snow sculpture contest, highlight of the Winter Weekend.

Janine and other freshmen living in Lourdes Hall at the college had an idea for a "snow masterpiece." The decision was easy—This is the Lourdes Centenary Year and the girls lived in Lourdes Hall. They started work on a snow shrine to Our Lady of Lourdes.

BUNDLED in their warmest clothes, the girls spent all day afternoons and evenings out in the snow. While her classmates packed and fanned snow to resemble a rock grotto, Janine carefully carved snow figures of Our Lady and Bernadette.

The girls defied chilly winds and wet snow to finish their masterpiece in snow. When they returned to their dormitory, Sister Gabriella had hot chocolate waiting for them.

Early Friday morning, the girls were out in the snow again to repair damages to their art work caused by bitter winter winds. Throughout the day the girls used all free time for perfecting details of their snow sculpture.

JANINE, who had never seen snow before and her freshmen classmates, were mighty proud when their Lourdes snow shrine won first prize in the college's Winter Weekend sculpture contest.

How long will the "snow" shrine last? "As long as we have cold weather and snow," say Janine and her friends.
