Rome Observes Good Friday

Good Friday processions of Rome, though not as well known as those of Spain, are equally dramatic. Here we view a night-time procession with the ancient Colosseum, hallowed by the blood of early Christian martyrs, in the background. (NC Photos)

Academy Alumnae Evening Exercise

An Evening of Recollection for Nazareth Academy alumnae and friends will be given on March 31 from 7 to 10 p.m. at Nazareth Academy auditorium.

Rev. Joseph Bernier, SSS, will be retreat master, according to Renee Dauwe, president of the alumnae association.

An invitation is extended to former Nazareth Academy students and their friends to participate in this Holy Week activity.

DOINGS AT THE DALY'S

By Mary Tinley Daly

The special delivery, air mail letter from Eileen in Bristol came some months ago:

"Dear Mom and Dad," it read. "Tony and I are going to have a baby. Isn't it wonderful? We are so thrilled..."

Needless to say, we are happy for them. But we should like to be nearer than an 11-hour drive over mountains. Why? Well, just because a woman's reason, compounded of many factors.

According to the sociologists, Eileen and Tony and the new baby are a "conjugal family" (husband, wife and children), while Johnny and Lu and their called "kinship family" with in-lawns as part of the so-called living in our metro laws all over the place.

WHICH IS better, conjugal or kinship? It's a nice question, and one which can be answered only by the young people involved. Probably, it is a yes-no-iffy answer.

Though we try not to drop in too often at the little house on Valley Road where Johnny and Lu and the four babies live, we find an almost irresistible impulse to direct the nose of the car that way.

Someone, just seeing them... well, forgive a grandmother. And, resolutely, we don't too often "drop in." We know, though, that when and if they need a helping hand they will turn to us of the in-law tribe.

As for Eileen and Tony, the "conjugal family" far away, they are in the same position the Head of the House and I were in a quarter-century ago, establishing our family far away from all kin. The bonds of family were kept up by letter, by rare long-distance phone calls and by prayer.

Now, for the first time, we realize the pleasure that our midwest family must have derived from "sending on a few things for the baby." At the time, we thought that we, as recipients, had all the pleasure. As the older generation, we see the other side of the coin—and what fun to make up the package?

With four grandchildren already, we are not unfamiliar with the baby departments of stores—and is there a more delightful one?

RECENTLY, we visited an other department, buying a dress for Eileen in a cheery atmosphere, surrounded by happy customers and clerks.

In this era, it's hard to believe, but I can well remember asking for a maternity dress and being directed surreptitiously to the back corner of the ladies dresses—beyond the outside ones. A rack was moved out; maternity dresses on one side and on the other side—of all things—SHROUDS! Ugh! Let's forget the old and welcome in the new...

Back to the "conjugal" vs. "kinship" family... We always have to translate this, as we do the discolored and calced Carmelites: in the first instance, it is without and with in-laws, in the second, without and with shoes.

With the speed of modern transportation, a "conjugal family" could become, for the time being, a "kinship family" within a matter of hours, but it would not, of course, change the intrinsic nature of the family.

They are still on their own, making their way as a family unit in a community other than that in which the childhood home is located, with all the relatives and friends.

As a "conjugal family" of the past, we missed the proximity of relatives. Yet, on the other hand, we had a certain sense of independence. We had no in-law problems, but we had no family confidence during times of uncertainty—and we had no in-law help, either!

In a quasi-philosophical mood, as the Head of the House and I were discussing this, and making plans for a try to Bristol to welcome the new Master or Miss Brennan, the Head of the House came up with a compromise that never before had occurred to us:

"Start out with one of your so-called 'conjugal families,'" he asked, "and the way we did. After a while—quite a while—you automatically become a 'kinship family' if you rear children."

"But," the chuckle came from a great depth of understanding, "you find yourself in need of in-laws... You get along, and eventually you find yourself a father-in-law—you're a grandfather, and married to a grandmother. And you discover that you've established a 'kinship family!'"

As someone once pointed out in a clever essay the greatest compliment we can pay another person is to tell him he is something he is not.

Hence, the greatest compliment we could pay a teenage driver would be to say he drives like a veteran. The reverse should also be true, yet neither, because there are teenage drivers and veteran drivers who proclaim their immaturity at every turn of the wheel.

Mental and emotional maturity cannot be achieved by living a long time, or driving a long while. It is a state wherein the individual recognizes himself as a responsible person, answerable to divine and natural laws. To implement these there has been evolved a civil code to which he is also responsible.

A Game Of Chance

By Mary Lennon Snyder

An elderly man of my acquaintance used to remark, much to his wife's annoyance, "If I were a young man looking for a wife, I would maneuver the girl of my choice into a game of cards; for in a card game I could see her character revealed." I say, "much to his wife's annoyance" because she did not play cards, and I suspect she always wondered if there were a concealed irony in her husband's remarks.

While a card game may be a good proving ground of character, it seems to me that an almost better spot in our modern world is behind the driver's wheel of an automobile.

This has been particularly true in these past few months when driving conditions have been particularly trying, with one way traffic necessitating more than the usual courtesy and consideration for others.

THE WRITER of the TV commercials for safety on the highways which urge drivers not to be "babies behind the wheel" has resorted to hyperbole to state that foolish driving is a sign of immaturity.

As someone once pointed out in a clever essay the greatest compliment we can pay another person is to tell him he is something he is not.

Hence, the greatest compliment we could pay a teenage driver would be to say he drives like a veteran. The reverse should also be true, yet neither, because there are teenage drivers and veteran drivers who proclaim their immaturity at every turn of the wheel.

Have You Heard Of The Special $1.00 Offer By Catholic Digest?

By Mary Lennon Snyder

The leading Catholic magazine of its kind in the country can now be enjoyed for 6 months for only $1.00. That's less than half the newsstand price (35c a copy)! Never before has so much excellent reading pleasure, edited especially for Catholic families, been offered at such a low price.

You can't compare the Catholic Digest with any other publication in its field, and people say it compares favorably with the Reader's Digest in the general field. Stories and articles of the most thrilling human interest are culled from the leading religious and general newspapers, magazines and books in all parts of the world. Every month there are about 40 articles, plus photos, drawings, anecdotes and jokes. Plenty of thrills, inspiration, education and information for every member of the family, teenagers to adults.

Decide now to take immediate advantage of this special discount of 82c. You're missing something really good if you don't read the Catholic Digest every month. We will send you the next 6 months' issues for only $1.00, even though thousands pay 36c apiece for them at the newsstands.

MIRACULOUS MEDAL FREE! With your trial subscription and to mark the beginning of your new friendship with Catholic Digest, we will send you absolutely free a beautiful sterling silver miniature miraculous medal. It is reproduced from Italy and may be attached to your wrist watch or rosary.

Just put a dollar bill in a piece of paper with your name and address clearly printed and mail to Father Gales, Catholic Digest, Dept. 373 St. Paul 13, Minn. The latest issue, with 128 pages of reading matter, will be coming your way at once!

So while I concede that the aforementioned gentleman may have had an excellent standard for character evaluation in his observation of card playing, I believe an equally valid test is the challenge of driving an automobile efficiently and courteously in today's traffic.

As someone once pointed out in a clever essay the greatest compliment we can pay another person is to tell him he is something he is not.
