DOINGS AT THE DALY'S

By Mary Tinley Daly

Mary Daly

"Decorating finished?" friends writing this column with a quill pen...
 So, with "Be Rid of It!" as our motto, we started on the woodwork. Armed with the strongest kind of paint remover, steel wool, all the ragged undershirts in the house and a determination to go Early American if it killed us, the whole family spent an evening concentrating on a door.

WITH SIX people working at the end of four hours we had amassed newspaperful of sordid paint—the green, gray, blue, white and original tan that the door had held over the course of its life in this 'ol' house.
 We had listened to the news eight times, the aerial snarl of paint remover had us half sick and tempers were growing short. Still, that one door was not finished.

"Look here!" the Head of the House thundered, slamming down his putty knife, ripping off rubber gloves. "We of the older generation wouldn't live to see this project through and the rest of you would be wasting your youth. We're not taking off any more paint — Mr. Brooks or no Mr. Brooks!"

Mr. Brooks, our laziness is vindicated. So, the woodwork got the same treatment as the walls — a coat of yellow paint administered in eight hours. We're not Williamsburg but we're comfortable!

The bookcases have been extended to the ceiling — a la Mr. Brooks — and they not only add to the stature of the room, they give us more space for the books we like to have around us.
 Now, the new furniture, plus the kept old ones, are making a tour of the pseudo-early American room until we find where they suit us best.

WITHIN a couple of weeks, the whole thing should be complete and we hope that our friends will drop in. After weeks of upheaval, they will find a place to sit.
 The room is about as Early American as foam rubber and spring down, electrical lights and TV can make it. After striving for the early, we're glad we settled for the late American and its comfort.

Though this 'ol' house has perhaps been Mr. Brooks' severest headache, we are thankful to him. He shook us out of our lethargy — and I'm sure' we "shook" him!

Prize Winning Film Available To Public

Detroit — (NC) — A film which was chosen the best motion picture in a recent film festival held under Catholic auspices in Lille, France, is now available in this country on a free loan basis.

Entitled "The Touch of His Hand," it portrays the work of Father Cesare Colombo of the Missionaries of St. Peter and Paul in the leper colony of Kengtung, Burma.

The motion picture was sponsored by the Missionaries of St. Peter and Paul and produced by William F. Denneen. A spokesman said that the 16-mm. sound-color can be obtained for organizational use by writing the missionary community at 121 East Boston Blvd., Detroit 2, Mich.

AMONG WOMEN

June's Devotions

By Mary Lennon Snyder

Mary Lennon Snyder

A week or so ago I received, as I have every month since Audrey Cushman has been our Diocesan Chairman of Spiritual Development, material to be emphasized during the approaching month. Since I have mentioned Mrs. Cushman's name I should go a sentence or two further and remark that the Diocesan Council has always been most fortunate in its choice of apostolic chairmen for the important Spiritual Development committee.

Lack of time and lack of appreciation often keeps me from acknowledging Mrs. Cushman's material; yet she continues to be faithful to send us her warm little notes and suggestions for spiritual development at the deanery level.

THE MONTH of June, she reminds us, is dedicated to the Sacred Heart and she enclosed two excellent pamphlets on this devotion. One entitled "The Apostleship of Prayer: Best Way of Life" by Thomas Moore, S.J., reminds us that "Plus XII, who understands the worth of the Apostleship of Prayer very thoroughly, emphasizes the Apostleship as the most perfect way of life."
 "He is much against considering the Morning Offering as a prayer for him, it is a dedication the day, a dedication to a way of life capable of sanctifying individuals and nations."
 "Whenever we think of the worth of any special way of living, we immediately think of the life of Jesus. It was the most perfect life ever lived by anyone on earth... The most perfect way of life, then, would be on that of Jesus, which comes as close as possible to the inimitable life of Jesus Christ."

"BY THIS WE do not mean a life which imitates the history of Jesus in its physical details. You could spend years in Nazareth, and thereby become a typical and average without being at all like Jesus.
 "What you have to do, to lead a perfect life, is to make the thoughts, the motives, the desires of Jesus your own. Then you will become Christlike, and no matter what you do, you will live under the inspiration of your Ideal and He will color all your thoughts and deeds. This will be the most perfect form of living."
 "When you study His life you are impressed by the fact that, complete and we hope that our friends will drop in. After weeks of upheaval, they will find a place to sit.
 The room is about as Early American as foam rubber and spring down, electrical lights and TV can make it. After striving for the early, we're glad we settled for the late American and its comfort.
